THE EXECUTIVE COUNCIL.

(4th June.)

An appointment to the Executive Council of Government appearing in the present week's Gazette, is the subject of some comment in circles interested in the administrative affairs of the Colony. We allude to a notification in which the Colonial Secretary, under yesterday's date, makes the announcement that "His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to appoint, provisionally and subject to His Majesty's pleasure, the Hon. Mr. Edbert Ansgar Hewett to be an unofficial member of the Executive Council in succession to Charles Wedderburn Dickson, Esquire, resigned." Immediately above that announcement appears one which is noted elsewhere in this issue notifying the fact of Mr. W. J. Gresson's appointment to the Legislative Council in succession to the senior partner of Messrs.

Jardine, Matheson and Company, to whose office Mr. Gresson succeeds on the departure of Mr. Dickson. Without suggesting any reflection on the merits possessed by the appointee of Government to the high office of a seat on the Executive Board of the Colony, the inquiry prompts itself, to the minds of those not behind the scenes, on what grounds the senior partner of the "Princely House" in the Colony has been passed over in the privilege which had hitherto been enjoyed by the representative of Messrs.

Jardine, Matheson in the secret deliberations of the Council of Government in this Colony. If our memory serves us aright, according to instructions of Her late Majesty the Queen, the Executive Council is to consist of the Governor, as president; the Senior Military Officer for the time being in command of His Majesty's regular troops; the persons for the time being lawfully discharging the functions of Colonial Secretary, Attorney-General and Treasurer; and of such persons as at the date of the receipt of the said instructions in the Colony are members of the Council, or as Her Majesty may from time to time appoint. We are again writing from memory, and have a recollection, that following the memorable agitation of that most public spirited and indefatigable citizen, who adorned the Council with his presence (Mr. T. H. Whitehead), for municipal government in the Colony, the constitution of the Council was amended so as to include two unofficial members on the Executive Board, besides other changes. The choice then made under the Governor's instructions witnessed the election of the Senior Unofficial Member, the Hon. Sir C. P. Chater, and the senior partner of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Company (Mr. J. J. Bell-Irving), to membership on the Governor's consultative board. To the advantage of the administration and the benefit of the Colony the inhabitants still enjoy the representation of Sir Paul Chater, whose long experience, mature judgment, and unflinching interest, in all that appertains to the promotion of the best interests of the island are still retained after all these long years of honourable service. Until the announcement was publicly made in the Gazette of last evening, associated with Sir Paul was the representative of the firm to which reference has been made more than once in the course of these comments. To the public no explanation is tendered of the suppression—for that is what the appointment under criticism amounts to—of the Hon. Mr. W. J. Gresson to a seat on the Executive Council through a succession of terms by his predecessors in office. It is just possible—though we should consider it highly improbable—that Mr. Gresson, with his multitudinous and extensive vested and relative interests in Hongkong, may have declined the offer of the honour of the appointment to the higher deliberative assembly. In such an event there can surely be nothing to cavil at in the action of the Government in ignoring, if not the vested rights, at any rate, the precedent of a prerogative coveted by most, and at one time enjoyed by the honourable member's predecessors. Indeed, during a previous absence of Mr. Dickson from the Colony, who held the substantive appointment, Mr. Gresson as his locum tenens, with honour to himself and to the satisfaction of the community, filled the vacancy as the second unofficial member on the Executive Council until Mr. Dickson's return. For what good seasons, if any, the honourable member's claims should on this occasion be ignored, it is not easy to the lay mind to discern. We cannot, however, suppress the conviction that, meritorious as might be the qualifications of the appointee in the person of the representative of the Chamber of Commerce, the grounds which had prevailed in the past, and which urged the unofficial representations on the basis of the first appointments should still hold good, and the member of the important firm of British merchants in Hongkong, who were unquestionably the pioneers of trade in China and undoubtedly the early exponents amongst the builders of our Empire in the Farther East, should be continued in the high and trusted office in all the most important deliberations in the administrative body that guide the destiny of this most important Colony.

COLONIAL FINANCE.

(4th June.)

If the figures presented in the comparative statement of revenue and expenditure of the Colony for the first quarter of the year, furnish any indication of the results likely to be attained for the current year, the finances of the Colony show anything but a promising outlook for the twelvemonth. Examining the revenue returns for the quarter, as compared with the same period last year, we are confronted with the fact that, whereas there has been an increase of $81,667.77 over the estimated amount, this surplus is more than absorbed by the decreased receipts in the other items which total $209,579.28. Of the latter amount Land Sales alone account for $178,831.07. Excluding this source of revenue, which really represents a capital asset of the Colony, there is a balance of fifty odd thousand dollars in favour of the current year. The detailed items of increase are—

Licences and internal revenue $12,188.19

Fees of Court, &c. 13,301.98

Rent of Property, &c. 55,826.54

Interest 351.06

The heads under which the decreases are accounted for comprise:—

Light dues 8941.58

Post Office 6,227.69

Miscellaneous 4,057.81

Water Account 19,521.19

Before passing to the estimates of expenditure, attention may be invited to a sum of $249,000 opposite a curious head of revenue denominated "Widows' and Orphans' Pension Fund." Enough has been said in these columns in opposition to the inequitable appropriation to the Colonial exchequer of so large a sum of money, which it is very questionable if Government can legally transfer to the general revenues of the Colony. So far it is pleasing to observe that, though the sum of over a quarter of a million dollars has been put down by way of transfer from the Fund to the coffers of the Government, in the revenue statement of the first quarter of the year, no credit has been taken of any portion of that money. Far the most equitable procedure would be to return this large accumulated Fund to the subscribers thereto, who should receive their disbursed quota with far better grace than the bonus a section of the Civil Service are claiming by reason of the appreciation in the gold value of the dollar—a bonus, we have no hesitation in again emphasizing, they have no title to. The expenditure of the Colony for the first three months of the year shows a diminution of a half lakh of dollars by comparison with the figures for 1905, that is, after excluding a sum of $435,048.95 devoted to Public Works Extraordinary. Inclusive of this sum, however, the aggregate expenditure is in excess of that for the corresponding period of last year by $125,935.54. Detailing the respective departments contributing towards the excess expenditure the result is tabulated as follows:—

Pensions 9,924.84

Registrar General's Department 838.12

Audit 322.80

Treasury 293.29

Post Office 4,434.50

Harbour Master's Department 3,170.52

Observatory 220.45

Judicial 874.10

Medical 7,079.08

Education 2,825.42

Charitable Allowances 29.35

Transport 439.06

Miscellaneous 3,586.83

Public Works 2,077.10

Do., Extraordinary 175,137.05

Against the foregoing increases must be set the various economies effected. They are in respect of—

Public Debt 20.09

Governor 253.44

Colonial Secretary's Dept. 237.66

Police 2,326.62

Sanitary 5,909.06

Botanical and Forestry 3,502.09

Military Expenditure 74,274.74

Public Works 2,077.10

aggregating $86,601.89. On the whole, it is very improbable from the results thus far attained that the financial operations of the Government for the current year will show any credit balance at the end of December. The largest deficit will, undoubtedly, be shown by the estimate framed for land sales, which in the present stagnant condition of the property market, may fall far short of the forecast for the year. There is all the more reason, in view of the unpromising outlook, why the taxpayers should not be burdened with any further expenditure like that involved in the Hon. Mr. Pollock's suggestion to the Legislative Council, to grant a bonus to the extent of half the salaries of the Civil Servants paid on a sterling basis, by converting that proportion on an arbitrary rate of exchange of 1s. 8d. to the dollar with that token's current value standing at 2s. 14d. The grant is preposterous!

A QUESTION OF MORALS.

(5th June.)

Hongkong residents are not troubled with the notorious gharri-drivers who afflict the people of Singapore, but in the coolie who drags a ramshackle contrivance facetiously described as a ricksha through the streets we have a very fair substitute for the Southern nuisance. Moreover, the ricksha coolie, is first cousin to the more dignified gharri-driver inasmuch as his command of language and vituperative epithets when offered what he considers to be rather less than his fare is lurid in the extreme. Fortunately, or otherwise, the average European has but the slightest acquaintance with the resources of the Chinese language as employed by the coolie, and is therefore unaware of the startling insinuations which follow a meagre payment. The coolie may seem to smile when hurling his marvellous imputations at the head of the miserly fare, but he is getting in some remarkably fine work in the way of an anathemas, and thus brings solace to his soul. In Singapore, however, the drivers use the Malay language which is generally spoken by the resident who was passed the griffin stage, and consequently the impertinence of the abusive Kling or Malay on the box is understood and appreciated at its full value. The result is that the vituperative driver is occasionally made the recipient of a firm and pointed rejoinder which he fears to resent, knowing that the law will probably be against him. However, in these days of freedom of speech and all the rest of the liberties of liberty so-called, the syc is apt to emulate the worm in turning, and this was the cause of an action which is apparently arousing considerable interest among the European population of Singapore. According to a report of the case which appeared in our contemporary, the Free Press, matters were involved by the doubt existing as to whether, when the syc replied with the valuable scorn of Jesus the world over, white or black, after saying it was alleged 20 cents for a gharri, his words contained the words gharri or "banger" puteh. If the former, the individual he was conveying a white ricksha-bond. After the syc had made use of the expression his fare promptly slapped him in the mouth. When the case first came before the Court, the syc was convicted of using insulting and contemptuous language and sent to prison. He now appealed against the decision of the lower Court. "Never in my whole experience of the bar have I heard of a magistrate in England sending a cabman to prison for using bad language under far less provoking circumstances," was one somewhat startling and original rejoinder by counsel for the appellant during the hearing of the appeal. Counsel's luck was envied, when, later on he avowed that, having been in the Straits three years, he had never had impertinence from this notoriously impertinent class of people. The Court dryly observed that learned counsel probably overpaid the "cabmen." In the end the Court declared that the conviction would not be interfered with, but the question of punishment would receive fresh consideration. That would appear to mean that a European, or any passenger in a public vehicle, who pays the legal tariff and is thereupon stigmatised by the wrathful puller or driver as a vagabond, etc., may be soundly chastised by the fare there and then. We do not believe that is a doctrine which will be generally accepted, and can scarcely commend it to our readers. The Bench has a habit of objecting to private individuals taking the law into their own hands, however greatly incensed they may be at the moment. It would seem, therefore, that the best way to secure the coolies' respect for their passengers is to hail them before the Court and charge them with using abusive and obscene language, which is a clear offence against the good morals of the community. It might be possible to have a test case on the subject, for admittedly the ricksha and unclear remarks of the unregenerate coolie who fancies himself swindled despite the clear terms of the legal fares are a nuisance and a disgrace to the city. The smallest reformat has an embroidery of foulness which none but those acquainted with even a smattering of Chinese can appreciate, and the coolies should be taught that such language will not be tolerated. It is evident that Singapore will have none of it. Why, then, should Hongkong lag behind in this respect?

THE NAVY LEAGUE IN HONGKONG.

The patriotic movement which was inaugurated a few years ago by a number of gentlemen interested in the welfare of the H.B.M. Navy has continued to grow and expand till now a branch of the Navy League exists in every part of the Empire. The movement had its origin in the fear that a new Government might seek to reduce the Navy Estimates, to the detriment of the first line of defence and the destruction of its personnel. It was not founded through mere caprice or party feeling but in the sincere desire that the basis on which the Navy stood at the time should be maintained. But there was also the deeper motive that the value of the Navy should be brought to the knowledge of the sons and daughters of the Empire, that they should be so instructed in its traditions and glory that the Navy should never lack enthusiastic supporters. It is needless to say that such a scheme appealed to Hongkong, the greatest naval base in the Far East. Daily the levitians of the British Navy are before the eyes of the Colony, and although, as a result of the Russo-Japanese war, much of the power of the China squadron has been shorn by the departure of the battleships which, it was considered, were no longer absolutely necessary in view of Japan's co-operation under the Anglo-Japanese treaty, the Fleet in Far Eastern waters is still of respectable proportions, and its presence means much to the prosperity of the Colony. It is conceivable that people living in an inland city, having no opportunity of viewing the vessels which have earned for Great Britain the title of "Mistress of the Seas," might show a half-hearted interest in the character and meaning of the Navy League, but Hongkong is too closely in touch with the Fleet to ignore its importance to the Colony. Even from a utilitarian point of view the Navy affects the port, and there is not a shopkeeper who does not view the departure of the Fleet to its summer quarters without regret. Accordingly when a branch of the Navy League was mooted in Hongkong there were not wanting those who gave the suggestion the most hearty support. The local branch was formed and has continued to flourish, although there is still room for extension. From the annual report which will be presented at the meeting to be held in the City Hall to-morrow afternoon it is clear that in fostering the objects of the League in the Colony the branch has not been backward, but much more might be done than has yet been attempted to inculcate that love and respect for the Navy in the minds of the young which is one of the objects of the League. The report remarks that the conclusion of the late war and the signing of the Anglo-Japanese Alliance has "enabled our Naval Authorities to effect a considerable reduction in the China squadron, but, in view of the recent rapid march of events in the Far East and of the necessity of upholding British prestige in China, it may be reasonably doubted whether such a policy of reduction has not been carried too far. In one respect indeed the Admiralty has modified its former policy inasmuch as it is re-commissioning certain ships for the purpose of upholding British influence in the inland waterways of China. The desirability of patrolling such inland waters was mentioned at the last general meeting of this Branch and has since formed the subject of some correspondence with the head office of the League." There is no doubt that most people in Hongkong will agree with the opinion that the Admiralty acted with undue haste in reducing the China Fleet by the recall of the battleships, but evidently the Admiralty have no intention of reverting to the former condition of things, and consequently the question may be said to have passed out of discussion. The Committee strongly opposed the retrocession of Weihaiwei on the ground of the desirability of its retention as a sanatorium for the officers and men on this station. Satisfaction is expressed at the returns of the big-gun shooting, and mention is made of the launch of H.M.S. Dreadnought. With reference to the doings of the branch it is reported that during the past year a sum of $787.30 was given for the purpose of purchasing a billiard table for the Seamen's Institute at Wanchai and the Committee understood that the gift has been much appreciated. The branch also gave a donation of $500 towards extraordinary expenditure incurred in connection with the Soldiers' and Sailors' Home at Arsenal Street. "In connection with the Trafalgar Centenary the President (the Hon. Mr. H. E. Pollock, K.C.) put himself in communication with the local Naval Authorities with the result that it was decided by the latter to accept a donation from this branch of $1,500 to be expended in connection with the new permanent recreation quarters for the officers and men of the Fleet which are to be erected at the Happy Valley. The Hongkong Government has in connection with this matter very kindly acceded to the request of your Committee, that the Naval Authorities should be permitted, subject to certain conditions, to erect permanent quarters at the Happy Valley in lieu of the existing 'matted' Nelson's Column was decorated on the anniversary day and a telegram sent to the Navy League dinner from Hongkong. There are 265 members in the local branch and 17 associates. Finally, the Committee express the hope that as the number of British adults resident in Hongkong—exclusive of the services—exceeds 1,200 the branch might be supported by residents coming forward in larger numbers to become members and associates. "The finances appear to be in a satisfactory condition. It will be seen that there is nothing to cavil at in the report beyond the fact that the local branch of the Navy League is perhaps too unostentatious in its operations. However, that can be improved so that in time every British resident in Hongkong may come to consider it a patriotic duty to belong to the Navy League.

INTERPORT SHOOTING TROPHY.

(6th June.)

One of the most popular of the interport sporting events is the annual competition for the rifle shooting championship of the Far East. Since the first of the matches was fired off in 1889 there has been a splendid feeling of rivalry engendered between Shanghai, Hongkong, Singapore and Penang to secure the highest points in the round, and it has been counted an honour to be selected as one of those representing the home port. In a way the honour was an empty one, in this respect that there was no trophy or reward offered for competition; there was nothing to record the prowess of the winning teams from year to year—it was the true sense of a sporting contest, the reward of the victors being the renown brought to the port they represented and the consciousness of duty well done. From time to time the suggestion has been made that a trophy should be obtained to keep on record the names of the winners, together with the individual and aggregate scores, which would form a guide to future generations of riflemen as to what was expected of them. The matter hung fire, for the simple reason that many held it to be more sportsmanlike to shoot for the honour of the event and not for the possession of a trophy. But human nature craves for recognition by posterity, and the proposal to have a trophy which would bear the legend of the victorious team for each year carried the day. Shanghai riflemen were most energetic in the matter and it is due to their efforts that this decision has mainly been arrived. It is now suggested that the trophy should take the form of a silver vase mounted on an ebony plinth which would be capable of bearing thirty silver medals, on each of which would be engraved the name of the winning team for the year, the names of the victors constituting the team and the scores. The first medal should bear the scores, etc., of the winning team in 1889, so that 17 medals would have to be filled up before the record of 1906 was entered. It is recalled that the winning team in 1889 was Shanghai, which made 819, and won by 42 points. They used Martini-Henry rifles and the competition took place at the end of November, when the thermometer was only two degrees above freezing point. The rules which have been framed for the maintenance of the trophy are similar to those in force in other competitions where a trophy is at stake. It is proposed to designate the trophy as the Interport Challenge Trophy. Then from next year the winning team for each year will see to the engraving of its shield before handing it on to the next winning team. Precautions are laid down for the guidance of the holders while the trophy is in their possession, and rules framed for the insuring and preservation of the valuable ornament. Should the trophy be won by Shanghai it would be handed over for safe keeping to the chairman of the Municipal Council; should Hongkong or Singapore succeed, the trophy will be kept by H.E. the Governor of the winning port; while it will go into the possession of the Resident Councillor should Penang carry off the honours. The rules will be submitted to the various ports and when agreed to they will be binding each and all. The trophy is expected to cost about £200, and each port will contribute an equal share towards its purchase. Already the public of Shanghai have been invited to subscribe towards that port's share of the contribution. The idea is really an excellent one and should stimulate popular interest in the annual contest. There is only one thing we would suggest which might be added to the rules, viz., that the members of the successful team each year should receive medals commemorative of the event, the cost of such medals to be borne by equal contributions from the four competing ports. The trophy will circulate, it is to be hoped, for half a generation between the four rivals, but it will eventually remain here. The victors may pass away from the Far East, and a memento of the event when they brought honour and glory to the port for which they fired might easily be given them in the shape of an inexpensive pendant.

CHINESE CUSTOMS RETURNS.

(7th June.)

The returns of the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs for the quarter January-March of the current year show a satisfactory increase over the dues and duties collected in the same quarter of last year. The total amount collected is Hk. $1,779,952 against Hk. $1,606,862 for the same period of last year, showing an increase of Hk. $1,191,090. Of this increase Shanghai alone contributes almost the entire amount, the respective figures for the Northern port in 1906 and 1905 being Hk. $1,329,605 and Hk. $1,269,954—an increase of Hk. $99,651, or approximately thirty per cent over the collections of the preceding year. To those who are believers in the future prospects of Shanghai these are eloquent figures indeed whereon to build the most optimistic hopes of what the trade of Shanghai is likely to be once the latent sources of the Empire—whereof Shanghai may be said to be the threshold of the gateway—are only modestly developed. The shipping entering and clearing probably is the safest index to a guidance in the correct appreciation of the prosperity of any port, and in this connection Shanghai again shows itself to considerable advantage in its trade relations with China and the outside world. During the quarter under review 5,651 vessels entered the port of Shanghai, the aggregate tonnage being 1,858,654, showing an increase of 228,281 tons compared with the same period of 1905. Of these vessels 5,101 were steamers from ports in China, 431 were from foreign ports and thirty-two were special entries. There were seventy-two sailing vessels from ports in China, five from foreign ports and ten special entries. The vessels cleared were 8,004 with an aggregate tonnage of 1,941,664 against 1,613,197 in 1905. Of the clearances 7,531 were for ports in China, 379 for foreign ports, and 8 "special." The ports mentioned in the Customs Gazette showing a decreased collection in respect of each are Tientsin Hk. $1,207,815; Shashi Hk. $1,349; Changshu Hk. $1,345; Kiangnan Hk. $1,644; Wuhu Hk. $1,677; Nanking Hk. $1,578; Hangchow Hk. $1,269,999; Foochow Hk. $1,362; Swatow Hk. $1,407; and Pakhoi Hk. $1,3170. All the other ports show an increase. Concerning the neighbouring stations in which Hongkong is more immediately interested the figures for Kowloon and Lappa are also on the progressive list. For the former the total collection was $1,96,367 and for the latter $1,11,156; these compare favourably with the previous year's collections which are $1,90,339 and $1,04,422, respectively, thus giving a balance in favour of the present year of $1,22,262, or eleven per cent. On the whole the revenue collections of China are on a progressive scale, which is a reassuring indication that its potentialities which form the basis of Works as to the impracticability of the inclusion of desirable public works in the programme for next year—induce a gloomy outlook of the Colonial finances for the coming year. Such a conclusion we had anticipated in our criticisms last week, suggested by the publication of the official financial returns of the Colony for the first quarter of the current year. Sir Matthew made public his statement yesterday afternoon that "it can fairly be assumed that land sales, unless there is a great improvement in trade, will not amount this year or next to a sum of $400,000, which appears in the Estimates for the current year." Previously to this announcement we remarked on Monday last, in connection with the Colony's financial prospects, that "it is very improbable from the results thus far attained that the financial operations of the Government for the current year will show any credit balance at the end of December. The largest deficit will undoubtedly be shown by the estimate framed for land sales which, in the present condition of the property market, may fall far short of the forecast for the year." Our remarks are more than justified by the statement since made by the President of the Council. We were then considering but one head in the revenue estimates: an item, by the way, which all true economists deprecate regarding as a source of revenue, inasmuch as Crown land must be looked upon in the nature of an asset whose proceeds by sale should be credited to a special fund and devoted to special purposes in its disbursements rather than merge it in the general revenues of the Colony. When reviewing the financial statements in our previous article the opium farm did not come within the purview of our notice. Attention was directed thereto in the Governor's remarks at yesterday's Council meeting. In Singapore the Farmer was compelled to resort to an appeal to Government for a substantial concession in a reduction on the allotment price of the monopoly. Here in Hongkong, the amount fetched for the exclusive privilege in handling the drug bears a certain relation to that obtained in the Straits. Hence it may be assumed that for the monopoly which has been officially advertised a much less sum than that paid by the present farmers will be tendered. Furthermore, if the figure given of the exodus of the Chinese population from the Colony, stated at 50,000, is correct, there is all the more reason to expect that the Opium Farm will be tendered for at a much more reduced rate. Similarly, assuming the figures of the exodus not to have been exaggerated there should be, if there are not actually, a larger number of vacant tenements in and out of the city, with a consequent diminution in the collections on assessments. These are the important sources of revenue which cannot be adequately made for under other heads which at present do not give promise of any material elasticity. In the past for special public works the Colony has had recourse to loans. The most recent attempt on the part of the local Government to negotiate the £200,000 sterling loan does not, as a matter of fact, reflect to the advantage of the Colony's credit in the London market. But nearer home—if only red-tapeism can be successfully overcome—our Bankers will eagerly advance the Government any reasonable amount which it may require, and whose burden it is only but fairly posterity should be called upon to share, and more so, with the present generation. A local loan, as has been often reiterated in these columns, has the greater advantage in that it is in the currency of the Colony from which all the vagaries and uncertainties of exchange will be removed.

NINGPO IN 1905.

Contrasted with the report on the trade of Shanghai for 1905, the record presented by Commissioner Lenox Simpson for the district within his jurisdiction, viz., Ningpo, bears unfavourable comparison. Whereas in the case of the more southern port a "record" was established for last year the trade of Ningpo for the same period shows a decline in the collection to the extent of nearly Hk. Tls. 22,000, which is compensated to a slight extent by an increase in the import duties of Hk. Tls. 6,000. Coast trade duties and tonnage and transit dues all exhibit small decreases; but the real deficit is in opium, the duty and likin combined showing a shrinkage of no less than Hk. Tls. 44,000. The total revenue collection was Hk. Tls. 613,877. Mr. Simpson writes:—"The spring and autumn crops in and around the district were reported to have been good. The rice harvest was above the average, and prices were on a reasonable level throughout the twelvemonth, much to the satisfaction of the poorer classes. The supply of pinyuey tea was exceptionally short, owing to the excessive rainfall during the earlier months of the year, and the business has been an unprofitable one. The total value of the trade of the port was close on 192 million taels, which shows a falling off of nearly 10 per cent. as compared with the 1904 figures. The value of the imports, foreign and native, aggregated 13 million taels; the exports amounted to a value of a little over 6 million taels, or Hk. Tls. 1,800,000 less than the year before." One of Hongkong's staple industries figured rather prominently in the trade returns, for we are told that there was a large business done in sugar, which is one of Ningpo's most important imports. During the year 334,000 piculs, valued at Hk. Tls. 1,600,000, were landed, of which 152,000 piculs was refined sugar from the Takoo and China Sugar Company's refineries at Hongkong. The 180,000 varieties, owing to their relative cheapness and good appearance, have gained a strong hold on the market, and the number of direct steamers from the Philippines bringing full cargoes is increasing. Little or nothing was done in Formosan grades, owing to depression in prices caused by Hio-Hio competition. It is reported that Hongkong refined was the only sugar which gave an increase of nearly 22 per cent. in the importation of all kinds. The remarks in the report on the subject of opium now so keenly debated are worth noting. It is stated that Mexican dollars to the value of Hk. Tls. 130,000 was imported, also copper coins (10-cash pieces) worth Hk. Tls. 106,000 from Hangchow Mint. Dollars equal in value to Hk. Tls. 673,625 were shipped to Shanghai. Respecting the new copper coinage—a subject which has attracted widespread attention and been acrimoniously debated from every point of view—there is nothing to be added from the experience of Ningpo. The 10-cash pieces were introduced into that port in the same manner as elsewhere, by an amicable arrangement between the provincial authorities and the numerous cash shop proprietors. Handy to use, clean to the touch, and of effective design, these coins immediately sprung into favour, as marking an advance, welcome to everyone, on the questionable copper cash coinage which has done service for so many centuries. But this reception, cordial as it was, was destined to be forgotten quickly. Soon it became learnt by the populace in general, and the exchange manipulators in particular, that there would be no limit to the output of the new coins and that all market would soon be flooded with them. This, coupled with the fact that the important rise in the price of silver upset many calculations and swept away the early confidence and caused a severe fall in the value of the new coins. Regarding the cotton milling industry, the report observes that the business of the Tung Chi Yuen Cotton Mill was highly prosperous. The mill worked steadily day and night throughout the year, the output reaching 38,000 piculs, of which, however, only a small portion passed through the Customs. Another cotton mill, promoted by a rival Chinese company, with a capital of $500,000, is now in course of erection on the other side of the river, opposite the Settlement. The machinery has been selected in England by a Japanese engineer, and the technical staff will be composed of men of this nationality. Thus is seen another instance of the inroads the Japanese are making into the industrial and commercial institutions of the Chinese.

COURT ACCOMMODATION.

The urgent need for larger accommodation in the Supreme Court was never, perhaps, better exemplified than it was yesterday, when his Honour the Puisne Judge took his seat to dispose of the weekly general summary list. Every solicitor in the Colony, without exception, appeared to be engaged on behalf of one or other of the numerous litigants, with the result that, not being able to find places at the table provided for them, they were forced to occupy the Press table, (unoccupied by the members of the Press at the time) the jury box, and the witness's seats, while the over-flow had to stand about the body of the Court-room, until they turned away to be heard, after which they immediately quitted the Court. And yet, withal, there is a good deal of room wasted by the big and quite unnecessary spaces reserved and enclosed for spectators, which, even when most interesting and important cases are being heard, are never more than half occupied, at most, in either Court. The removal of some of the front seats and the accommodation of another table, would surely be appreciated by the legal fraternity, and there is no good reason why it should not be provided.

"THE SURPRISE OF HIS LIFE"

A correspondent writes to tell us that he got the surprise of his life on Thursday last, which he has not got over yet. High exchange and high prices have jogged along hand in hand so long that he, probably like everybody else, had quite given up all hope of better things to come. However, on Thursday he went to make his usual weekly purchases of supplies from the compradore he has long dealt with, and upon obtaining his parcels, he put down on the counter the exact amount he had been paying all along, when to his astonishment the "man behind the counter" handed him back 10% of his money, with the laconic remark, "can sell now little more cheap." The man had never been asked for any rate, nor was any reduction in prices even hinted at to him, at any time by our correspondent, which made the incident all the more astonishing. "I hold no brief for the compradore, and moreover, as he would, no doubt, be averse to the possible mobbing that might follow, both from too eager purchasers and rate rivals in the business, I abstain from mentioning his name, or giving his address," concludes our correspondent. We may add that the example of the compradore in question might well be emulated by traders in a more general way in the Colony, to the benefit of their patrons and without unfair disadvantage to themselves.

All the foreign missions are safe and none of the missionaries have been molested.

[The rising at Yungshan was first reported in these columns on the 31st ult. and at one time assumed serious proportions. It was believed to be the result of a secret society movement. The authorized capital of the company will be Yen 150,000,000.

The Water Police summoned twenty-seven masters of coal-boats before Mr. F. A. Hazeland on Wednesday, for neglecting to take out licences for their boats. They all denied the charge, saying that they possessed receipts for their licence money. Inspector Langley explained that the object of neglecting to take out their licences was to evade the new regulations framed by the Harbour Master for the prevention of overcrowding. The old licences expiring in March last and defendants had five weeks in which to renew their licences. His Worship fined them $5 each and cautioned the men, ordering them to get and get their licences at once, otherwise they would be summoned again and a heavier penalty imposed.

ALLEGED WHOLESALE KIDNAPPING.

A STREET FIGHT.

This morning, at the Police Court, before Mr. F. A. Hazeland, five Chinamen, all looking as if they had been roughly handled, figured in the dock to answer a charge of fighting in the public street, yesterday.

Mr. C. F. Dixon: I appear for two of the defendants, your Worship, but I see only one of my clients here.

His Worship: Do you know what they are charged with?

Mr. Dixon: I have just been told, your Worship. I thought they were charged with a mere assault.

Detective Wait: Yes, your Worship. The first defendant, as soon as this case is over, will be re-arrested and charged with kidnapping a few hundred men and bringing them into the Colony, presumably for the purposes of emigration. All the defendants were fighting over the kidnapping business your Worship.

His Worship: If the defendants plead guilty to the present charge they will only be fined $3 each. Do you plead guilty on behalf of your client?

Mr. Dixon: Yes, your Worship. The defendants all pleaded guilty and were fined $3 each.

Mr. Dixon's client was later on re-arrested and charged with kidnapping.

Mr. Dixon: What about bail, your Worship?

His Worship: What sum can you put up?

Mr. Dixon: Two hundred dollars.

His Worship: Does that suit the police?

Detective Wait: It is a serious case, your Worship.

The case was remanded until Wednesday next, bail to be fixed by the police.

MONEY-CHANGER IN TROUBLE.

ALLEGED THEFT FROM JOB.

Mak Chak, a money-changer, of No. 112, Queen's Road East, was charged before Mr. F. A. Hazeland, this morning, with stealing $10 from Job Roberts, foreman, Army Service Department, at 9 a.m. to-day.

Mr. P. W. Goldring appeared for the defendant, who pleaded not guilty.

At about nine o'clock this morning, the complainant went to defendant's shop and tendered him a ten-dollar note in exchange for subsidiary coin. The defendant placed the roll of the complainant in ten dollars, on the counter, and also fifty-five cents as premium. The complainant was so surprised at this that he forgot all about the $10 in small coin, but took the premium and walked away. After having proceeded about one hundred yards from the shop he discovered his mistake and rushed back to the shop for his money. It was alleged that defendant said complainant took it away, and would not return the money. Complainant went to a Police Station and reported the occurrence to Inspector Gourlay, who arrested the money-changer.

Mr. Goldring asked for a remand, which was granted until Wednesday next. Defendant was released on bail in the sum of $50.

NOCTURNAL ACROBAT.

SENT TO GAOL.

A Chinaman calling himself Tang Kin appeared before Mr. C. F. Dixon, at the Police Court this morning, charged with being a vagabond and loitering inasmuch as he was found wandering about the public street during the small hours of this morning, and having no fixed place of abode. Defendant denied the accusation of "wandering about the street," saying that he was getting fresh air. Evidence was heard to the effect that when Tang was first sighted by the police he was looking up the staircase of different houses. The policeman told the next corner he found Tang busily climbing up the scaffolding, which was erected outside house No. 13, Lower Lascar Row. The officer told Tang to come down and be arrested. Tang replied that if he didn't look out he would drop on him. Eventually the acrobatic gentleman was marched to the Central Police Station. At the Court to-day, Tang said that he did not go up the scaffolding for any unlawful purpose, but simply to get the wind and to "see things." He was sentenced to fifteen days' hard labour.

PUBLIC MEETINGS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONGKONG TELEGRAPH."—How hard it is to have one's old pet theories and beliefs shattered. I strolled into a friend's study the other day, and casually picked up an Indian paper, my eye fell upon the following excerpt from a Calcutta vernacular paper, and it gave me pause:—"We deprecate the holding of public meetings, and some of our contemporaries have objected to this proposal. Let us honestly consider the situation. We have held political meetings by hundreds and thousands, and tens of thousands. We have put our case strongly, intelligently and honestly; justice is on our side; yet can any one say that we have ever gained anything by holding these meetings? Have we been able to move one muscle of the Government? On the other hand, we have lost much. When we gain nothing by holding public meetings, it is dissipation of energy to hold them. By holding them and delivering speeches we lose that vital energy which is necessary to cause our growth, and which we should conserve and store up for emergency. By holding public meetings we often humiliate ourselves before the world, and lose our self-respect by whining. We also betray our utter helplessness and impotence by holding our idle threats. We allow ourselves to be seen through and through by our opponents. The energy that we waste after political meetings should be devoted to solid work. What these solid works have to do with us, we should not point out by us. But now and then we revert to the subject again. It would possibly be interesting, not to say instructive, to hear what further the intelligent writer can possibly have to say on the subject when he 'reverts to it again.'"

I was always of the opinion that public meetings to consider vexed questions of the day, which closely concerned the public interests, was the one and only proper method by which we should carry out the ancient precept and fulfill the duty of the citizen.

I have personally presided at several public meetings, without experiencing any "dissipation of vital energy," nor any "loss of self-respect," and I can say "we have gained something" by holding those meetings. To quote one single instance, an instance which may also be known to, and remembered by, others in the Colony. When Lord Ripon was Viceroy of India, in 1884, he endeavoured to enact an ordinance (known vulgarly as the "Black Act") whereby power was to be given to the native capitalists, the "semi-civilized, treacherous, greedy, squalidous Ben-galce Baboo," as he was universally dubbed, to have white men placed before them for trial and, if necessary, punishment. As soon as this project became known, a wave of indignation surged over the length and breadth of India, and public indignation meetings were held in all the towns, large and small, and the resolutions of protest then passed against such a scandalous enactment, were forwarded to the Viceroy, with the true announcement that, unless satisfaction was reached, the matter would go beyond him. Now did we do any good by those public meetings? Only this much; that those public meetings added to the Bill (officially dubbed the "Black Act") after the name of the introducer, Lord Ripon's cat's paw which provided that "a European shall in all cases have the right to demand to be tried by a European, and such demand shall in all cases be acceded to," which practically annulled the whole of the Bill, for never would a European force his right under that provision. Thus are public meetings useful indeed.—Yours, etc.,

Hongkong, 8th June.

THE AMERICAN MEAT SCANDALS.

AUSTRALIA'S POSITION.

A representative of the Telegraph waited this morning upon the Queensland Government Commissioner concerning the recent revelations published as to the nature of the meat products canned in Chicago.

Mr. Jones said, "the condition of affairs has long been known, not alone to those interested in the industry, but to many of the general public. Some twelve months since Parson's Weekly published articles exposing the scandalous utilization of putrid and diseased carcasses, also the foul state of the slaughter-houses and packing rooms, and the frequently filthy as well as diseased condition of many of the men employed. Personally, I never make any attempt to criticize the products of other countries. I prefer to introduce Australian goods upon their actual merits. If we cannot compete then we must take a back seat. This competent talk, however, the Australian canners have paid too little attention to the get-up of their products, using awkward-looking tins, with hideous unattractive labels, does not hold good. As a matter of fact, when I was in Brisbane at Christmas, our packers were exhibiting side by side our cans with the American article, got up almost in perfect imitation of our own. Anyhow, as close as the trade-marks law would allow them. The reason that we have not been able to compete with the Americans in the canned meat industry has been purely a matter of price. This more especially in the markets of the Orient. Now, at the present moment, beef is very dear in Australia, as high as 22/- per 100 lbs dressed, yet this is considerably cheaper than ruling rates in the American market. We have the most complete boiling-down works, with the very latest machinery, expert managers and skilled artisans. There is not anything good and labour-saving which the American packers have that we do not also control. If our meat is cheaper (the splendid quality is acknowledged) and the cost of canning and production equal, the Americans can only under-sell us by the methods the exposure of which has shocked the civilized world. Take Manila; the Americans have not the slightest chance to compete with Queensland in tendering for the large contracts for the Government. We can supply the order. But when it comes to canned goods in Manila we have not any chance. This applies not only to the Eastern market; it is the same with the other food-importing countries. Last year we exported over £1,500,000 sterling of frozen meat, yet our shipments of canned goods just barely turned £200,000. The demand for our frozen lamb invariably exceeds the supply."

"I told you last year that the other Australian States were closely following the example of Queensland in the passing laws which exact the most rigid Government inspection of all food products intended for over-sea exportation. Not only have the beasts to be examined by the veterinarians before slaughtering, but there is a systematic inspection of all factories and works. There is microscopic examination of all hog products. This all helps to establish the soundness of our article in the foreign markets. There are greedy and selfish men to be found in every country, and a slight advantage over their competitors would spoil a market by sending inferior shipments. It is the Honourable Digby Denham, the Minister for Agriculture in Queensland, to whom is due all the credit for the rigid laws with respect to State supervision of food products. Quite recently, he passed a most severe Dairy Inspection Act. Not only is cleanliness made compulsory, but the dairies and systematic testing and inspection at all dairies and butter and cheese factories."

THE N.D.L. "ROON."

REPAIRS SHORTLY COMPLETED.

Messrs. Melchers & Co. inform us that the repairs of the Imperial German mail steamer Roon will be finished at Nagasaki on the 27th inst., and that this steamer will be despatched from Hongkong to Europe via usual ports of call on the 11th of July.

Some days ago an extensive opium raid was made at Hau-ki-wan by Chief Excise Officer Hoggarth and a party of excise officers and constables. They raided house No. 26, Ha Kung Nam, seized 160 taels of raw opium and 12 taels of opium dross, and arrested two women in a corner of the house was found a second table, in which was discovered over $1,000 in subsidiary coins. Both women were charged with being in possession of illicit opium, and the case was adjourned until Friday. One thing which was peculiar in this case was the ingenious way in which the opium was hidden. A special table, containing a false surface was made, and in the secret compartment was stored the drug.

Mr. F. B. Denoon, of Messrs. Deacon, Looker and Deacon, appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Otto Kong Sing defended. Evidence was heard, and the prosecution said that defendants supplied the whole of Hau-ki-wan with opium. Mr. Hazeland imposed a fine of $1,000 on the first defendant on the charge of having raw opium in her possession, and $70 for the cross opium. The second defendant was ordered to be discharged. The case was paid forthwith.

HARBOUR OFFICE.

AS A MARKET.

In the British colonies one sometimes hears of strange adaptations of stranger structures for use as Government departmental offices, but these more usually partake of the "annexing" of some big godown, altering the same by the erection of walls and partitions, putting in the requisite furniture. "And there you are!" you have an office fit for the Lord High Chancellor, or the Lord High anybody else, for that matter. Here in Hongkong, however, the old rule, if it can be called such, is to be reversed, and when the Harbour Master's department moves into its new home now just nearing completion, on the Praya, and situated to the east of the Canton wharf, on the 1st process, the offices vacated are to be altered and in future utilized as a pork and vegetable market, as an annex to the market erected just opposite to that building, and which is to be used for the sale of fish, meat, and general produce. The scheme at least has the merit of novelty, and as there does not appear to be any other particular use to which to put the vacated building, perhaps a better scheme could not have been devised. A marine commander, in the Harbour Office the other day, remarked to a representative of the Hongkong Telegraph, that the building would make an ideal seamen's hospital, but he had evidently not studied its environment, nor, apparently, was he aware that the new building just across the way was to be used as a place for the sale and distribution of our daily supplies of food, and no hospital is wanted anywhere near it. Heaven forbid!

S.S. "RUBI"

THE CASE OF CAPT. ALMOND.

Although it was known several weeks ago that the popular captain of the Rubi, R. W. Almond, had been accused of a violation of the immigration laws, the Manilla Cabaret news says the decision of the Supreme Court, which goes extensively into law, and was written by Judge Carson, has just been made public.

It was alleged that Captain Almond, about October 27 brought a Chinaman to Manila from Hongkong, and that the man was afflicted with trachoma, a loathsome contagious disease, and that the captain allowed him to land at a place and time other than that designated by the immigration officers and contrary to instructions issued.

The captain was charged with a violation of the Act of Congress of March 3, 1903, entitled "An Act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States." The Act provides that a penalty of $100, or a term of three years, shall be imposed for a violation thereof. Captain Almond was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine according to the Act.

The statute reads simply that the officer "who shall permit an alien to land etc." The defendant contended that the word "permit" implied that the landing of the alien, to constitute a criminal offence must have been with the Captain's tacit consent. The word "permit," as defined in the Century Dictionary, means to suffer to be or allow without expressly authorizing. The Supreme Court held that if this requirement was intended to make the master of a vessel an insurer against their landing at all hazards, Congress would have chosen terms more clearly expressive of such intention, and instead of using a word of uncertainty meaning would have affixed a penalty where the captain in charge permitted the alien to land with or without fault on his part.

The attorneys for the prosecution contended that the officer was responsible criminally even though he had taken every possible precaution and done all in his power to prevent the unlawful landing. The Court thought that the evidence of record was sufficient to sustain the contention of Captain Almond that he adopted the due precautions and that the Chinaman's landing was without his consent and despite the precautions taken.

The Court says in conclusion: "We think this statute was not intended to secure obedience to all the rules of the immigration officers at all hazards, but to require good faith and full diligence in the effort to comply with them."

Judgment of the trial court is reversed and the accused is acquitted of the offence with the costs of both instance de officio and the bond for the appearance of the accused cancelled.

BANGKOK SUPERSTITIONS.

The majority of existing superstitions in Bangkok seem to be connected with gambling. Here is one way of obtaining luck that was experimented with only a few days ago. Earth was obtained from seven cremation places, from seven ant heaps and from seven landing stages along the river. The whole was mixed together, and used to make small earthen pellets, in the centre of each of which was placed a tiny piece of palm-leaf with a letter engraved on it. A small image of the lottery farmer was also made of the same material. The pellets and image were then placed in water in a monk's begging bowl, and lengthy incantations were said. This is no doubt the vital part of the ceremony. In any case the little pellets soon began to split open, and the pieces of palm leaf float to the surface. The first two to come up give the numbers that will win the lottery that day. On the recent occasion when this was tried one number floated on the water, and the other stuck to the bottom of the bowl. It is said they were the winning letters of the day, but those making the experiment were too late to make any use of the first one.

Another curious method of obtaining luck was also tried in Bangkok a few days ago. A man handed himself recently at Wat Sam Plim. A portion of the cloth by which he did the deed was obtained and handed to a "Mon. Duff" or fortune teller who placed it in a covered pot with two letters. These, followed once more the lengthy incantations, and the pot was handed back to the resident seeking luck. The instructions were that the pot was not to be opened till groans were heard to proceed from it. After about a week groans were heard to come from it, though not by the person making the experiment. It happened at night, of course, but curiously enough the person who heard the groans did not become ill, apparently the significance of the pot was that it was a sign of good luck, and the two letters found inside proved to be the lottery letters of the day! The last statement is presumably necessary to give completeness to the tale, for it has to be added that nobody made a fortune with the information.

It should be worth while to have a collection of the incantations used for such purposes made and published.—Bangkok Times.

The lease of five lots of foreshores at Hang Hau village, in the New Territories, is proposed to be granted for terms of 75 years each. The contents in square feet of each lot are, respectively, 7,527, 7,750, 8,320, 8,500 and 3,500. The Crown was payable in respect of the two lots named is $16 each, and on the other three the rent is to be assessed at the end of five years.

CLAIM FOR RENT

AND "SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE."

2nd inst.

In Original Jurisdiction to-day, His Honour Sir Francis Pigott, Chief Justice, presiding, Ho Tung, of "Idlewild," Seymour Road, sued Chung Shun Koo, of No. 12, Queen's Road Central, for (1) specific performance of an agreement of lease, and (2) the recovery of the sum of $5,000 being the amount of arrears due by the defendant to the plaintiff, for rent.

Mr. E. H. Sharp, K.C., instructed by Mr. D. V. Stevenson, of Messrs. Deacon, Looker and Deacon, appeared for the plaintiff, and Hon. Mr. H. E. Pollock, K.C., instructed by Mr. M. J. D. Stephens, represented the defendant.

Mr. Ho Tung said he was the plaintiff in this case. He lived at "Idlewild," Seymour Road. He completed the negotiations for the purchase of the property in 1904, and bought it in November of that year from Messrs. Babington and Mody. The purchase money was $75,000, subject to a mortgage of $15,000 to Mr. Smith, and a second mortgage of $80,000 to the vendors, and the balance in cash. Mr. Binsley approached him on behalf of the defendant with regard to a lease. Witness asked him $2,500 a month rent, plus taxes, for a term of three or five years, the rent to commence from the signing of the contract, and also he asked for $10,000 for security for the term of the lease. A counter-offer was made of $2,500 monthly rent plus taxes, for a term of ten years, the rent to commence in July, 1905, the lessee to spend $20,000 or $15,000 on alterations and repairs to the building. Mr. Binsley also offered $5,000 as security instead of $10,000. With slight modification the terms were embodied in the agreement. The modification was that the lessee should spend $5,000 instead of $10,000. The agreement also provided that the tenants should be allowed to remain in occupation until the lessee received the agreement to the "Daily Press" to remain undisturbed until their new premises were ready. Messrs. Babington and Mody sold the premises to witness. The lease of the premises to the "Daily Press" was not shown to witness. It had been mislaid, and to the best of his belief it had not been found. Witness did not know when the "Daily Press" new premises were to be ready when he bought the premises. The agreement was drawn up in duplicate, each party retaining a copy after due execution. When Mr. Binsley first brought the agreement to witness, the "Daily Press" was not there, and as it was one of the previously arranged conditions Mr. Binsley took it back, and put in the "Daily Press" afterwards the parties signed the two copies. It was brought back the same day. Apart from the "Daily Press," another firm remained in occupation in terms of the agreement. They remained until February, 1905, when defendant requested them to vacate and they did so. Defendant got the keys just after the signing of the agreement, and went into possession. That was about the end of December or beginning of January. Immediately after signing the agreement witness gave Messrs. Deacon, Looker and Deacon instructions to prepare the lease. That was the very next day. Messrs. Deacon, Looker and Deacon were then acting for both parties. After the date of the agreement witness received a rent $2,518.50 to end of June, and for the month of July from the "Daily Press" $150, witness paying the taxes. During the preparation of the lease by Messrs. Deacon, Looker and Deacon, defendant offered witness a second mortgage on some other property instead of the cash security. And further that the first and second mortgages should not be joined as parties to the lease, witness giving an indemnity for that raising of the jointer. The lease was prepared accordingly. [The agreements and leases were here produced.] Witness was subsequently approached by Mr. Binsley, on behalf of defendant, asking for a remission of rent for a few months, on the ground that he would lose money, as some of the members of the syndicate backed out of the business. Witness asked for what purpose the premises were to be used, and was told for a boarding-house or hotel.

Mr. Pollock submitted that this was going quite off the track and was irrelevant.

The Chief Justice said he assumed Mr. Sharp understood his position.

Mr. Sharp:—I assume I do.

Witness, continuing, said he did not agree to make any remission of rent. After he had so declined to give such concession, he received a letter from Messrs. Deacon, Looker and Deacon, dated 15th March, 1905, in which was produced a copy of that letter. That letter asked for the same concession. Witness replied to that letter. The letter produced was his reply, in which he said he could not see his way to grant the concession asked for. There was no further correspondence upon that subject between them. On the 10th April witness wrote to defendant enclosing a letter from the "Daily Press" in which the latter complained of the workmen letting water into their office, and saying he would be held responsible for any damage done. Further correspondence followed upon the same subject, witness forwarding on all letters from the "Daily Press." On the 12th April, witness received a letter from Deacon, Looker and Deacon, in which they said they were instructed that witness had promised defendant, through Mr. Binsley, time to do the necessary work of repairs and alterations. Witness wrote back to say he never made any such promise, through Mr. Binsley, or any one else. Witness said defendant personally regarding the concessions he was asking. That was on the 22nd May 1905, and witness's house, where defendant called, and asked for the remission of rent, saying that some members of his party had cried off their agreement, and moreover, he was having trouble with his contractor. [Two letters were here produced dated 12th and 22nd May, written by defendant to witness, they were duplicates but dated, as to 11th, second, ten days later.] Witness only received the one dated 22nd.

Mr. Pollock: You said you received them both.

Witness: The contents being identical I thought I had received the letters until I saw the dates. I never received the one dated 12th May.

Mr. Sharp: Well, now, here's a third letter—what is this, Mr. Ho Tung?

Witness: This is a letter dated in English, 22nd May, but I never received it, and never saw it before.

Mr. Pollock: There is nothing in English on this letter.

Mr. Sharp: Mr. Ho Tung, your truthfulness is again challenged; will you look again for the English date?

Witness: It is in Chinese characters "May 22," immediately under the Chinese date. I did not say it was written in English; I only said the equivalent of the English date was there.

Witness, continuing, said all the letters, admitted and denied as to receipt, all bore upon the subject of the remission of rent. It was after the receipt of the letter of 22nd May that he had the interview mentioned. He had no interview with defendant either before or after that one; it was his sole interview. Witness said he would let defendant know his decision in a day or two and subsequently wrote to inform defendant that he could not see his way to give any indulgence with regard to the lease for the premises, No. 14, Des Voeux Road. At that interview defendant spoke about his financial position, and said if witness did not give him some concession he would have to go into bankruptcy or leave the Colony. The alterations had to be carried out under the agreement, under the supervision of an architect, and Messrs. Palmer and Turner were selected to carry out the supervision. While the alterations were going on witness received a letter from Messrs. Palmer and Turner saying that they were surprised to learn from the defendant that their contract for supervision was only a dummy one.

Mr. Pollock: I object to that letter; it is irrelevant, and you can prove nothing by correspondence.

His Honour: I don't think it is relevant, and is not of any importance.

Mr. Sharp: It is relevant as showing that the defendant was changing his attitude, and so it is of minor importance.

Mr. Pollock: You cannot prove the attitude of the defendant by producing correspondence.

His Honour: Yes, I don't think it is relevant; it had better not go in.

Mr. Sharp: I accept your decision, my Lord.

Witness, continuing, said that at the interview mentioned defendant did not ask the concessions regarding the rent as a right, but as a special favour. On receipt of witness's decision defendant addressed a very strong appeal to the generosity of witness, as he said he was losing money all the time, and was in great trouble, but he could not grant any concession. Witness did not know what the lawyers did as regards securing the signature of the mortgages to the lease, but as they could not assume the matter of the indemnity was arranged.

Mr. Sharp: One of the mortgages, Mr. Smith, was in London, but I am in a position to state that the signatures of the mortgages can now be obtained.

Cross-examined by Mr. Pollock, witness said he lived at the Peak sometimes as well as at "Idlewild." He had a great many business interests in the Colony. Witness was not present at any of the business interviews between the lawyers and the defendant. The letter of 14th December, 1904, from the defendant to Binsley, was shown to witness after the signing of the agreement. He never saw it before. He was perfectly certain upon that point; he was not shown that letter until afterwards. He did not know why Binsley showed him that letter after the agreement was signed, nor did he know of any reason why he should have shown him the letter then, as it was defendant's authority to Binsley to negotiate the matter. A few days before the final offer was made Binsley told witness what offer the defendant would make. The question of the spending from $10,000 to $15,000 by defendant for repairs on the premises was mentioned a few days before the 20th of December—it was after the 14th December. Before the agreement was brought to witness for signature he had spoken to Binsley about the subject which was afterwards put in the "Daily Press." The defendant got the key of the premises at the end of December or beginning of January. He got it from witness's watchman.

Mr. Pollock: I put it to you that he did not get the key until March.

Witness: To the best of my belief he got it in December or January.

Mr. Pollock: Did you see it given?

Witness: No, I was not present, but I understood that my watchman gave it him then.

Mr. Pollock: Then you don't know.

Witness, continuing, said he agreed to take the second mortgage in lieu of cash, and to give the indemnity in March.

Mr. Pollock: Then everything was bright and happy and cheerful and straight and there was to be no further trouble over the affair, about March—is that so?

Witness: Yes, that is so, in March.

Mr. Pollock here produced a letter dated April in which Mr. Deacon wrote to Mr. Babington stating that matters were still in dispute between Mr. Ho Tung and defendant, and asked if there was any trouble.

Witness: Defendant went back on his word, so often it was impossible to know what he was up to.

Mr. Pollock: But you say that the matter was settled in March; how do you make that out?

Witness: Practically settled.

Mr. Pollock: What do you mean by "practically"?

His Honour: He means, I take it, that all the arrangements had been settled in March, but of course those arrangements had to be carried out, and that would take them into April.

Witness, continuing, said Binsley told him about the projected use of the premises as a hotel or boarding-house. Defendant never said that Binsley had said the "Daily Press" were to go out of the premises in February, 1905, and that he, defendant, had been badly treated. At the one interview defendant only said that Binsley bullied him, but he did not explain how, or in what the bullying consisted.

Mr. Pollock: Here is a letter from Chang Shun Koo to you, complaining that Binsley had made him certain promises which had not been fulfilled. Did Chang Shun Koo refer to those promises to you?

Witness: He mentioned about being bullied, but did not refer to Binsley's promises. As regards the "Daily Press" he said he thought the repairs could be carried out without interfering with them, but he found they couldn't.

Mr. Pollock: Did not Chang Shun Koo complain of something more serious than being bullied? Did he not say he had been deceived?

Witness: No, he simply said bullied, and I told him he was a business man and should be able to look after himself.

Re-examined by Mr. Sharp, witness said, putting aside the question of whether the defendant did or did not get the keys in January, he knew he could have had them at any time—the place was always practically open. Defendant did not make any special charges against Mr. Binsley, but mentioned the bullying in a casual way.

Witness then spoke as to defendant's approaching him to secure a lease of the next house, saying it was to be used as a hotel or boarding-house. He arranged that lease with the Land Investment Co. Subsequently defendant approached him to arrange a further lease of the house in dispute. That was about a week after the other lease had been settled. Witness then approached Mr. Ho Tung, and the latter made terms. Witness had no written record of those terms, but he remembered them. Witness here cited the terms as above.

The Court adjourned for tiffin.

After the adjournment, Mr. Binsley continued his evidence in corroboration of the evidence of the last witness, and said that, when he was negotiating for the lease, defendant said if he had not been for him (defendant) would have secured the purchase of the property on the same terms. Defendant said he would like the "Daily Press" to stay there permanently, as they were paying good rent, and the premises were not needed so much alteration. That was said during the negotiations for the lease. The "Daily Press" referred to was a simple overnight on witness's part, and it was inserted without demur on the part of Chang Shun Koo. The agreement produced was written at witness's office and signed at Chang Shun Koo's house. Defendant asked witness to try to negotiate for the "Daily Press" to remain on, and witness saw Mr. Hale of that office, who said that another agreement had been entered into by which they were absolutely bound. It was not correct, as had been said, that witness intended to defend that the "Daily Press" would vacate in February, 1905. There was no foundation for that statement, nor for the statements made by Chang Shun Koo that witness promised him six months' vacant possession. There was no promise whatever as to what date the "Daily Press" would vacate. Witness did not then know the date himself. Their new premises were then occupied by Dodwell & Co., but witness did not know when that firm vacated the premises. In the negotiations for the sale and the subsequent lease witness acted for both sides. During the negotiations in Mr. Deacon's office Chang Shun Koo said he could not pay the $7,500 cash security, and asked Ho Tung to accept a second mortgage on some other property in lieu thereof. Mr. Ho Tung accepted the suggestion. Owing to the difficulty of obtaining the signatures of the mortgages to the lease it was agreed that Ho Tung should give the defendant an indemnity instead of the cash security. The documents were drawn up in the office of Messrs. Deacon, Looker and Deacon, and duly signed, and they were delivered to defendant in witness's presence.

Defendant told witness that the premises were to be used as a hotel or boarding-house. At the end of February or beginning of March defendant told witness that the syndicate had fallen through, and consequently the hotel scheme had also fallen through. He then asked witness to see Ho Tung and ask for some concession in rent, as he was in difficulty, as he could not find any tenants, his scheme and the syndicate had fallen through, the contractor was asking higher rates, and there were Chinese failures. Defendant asked the concession as a favour, and not at all as a right. The second mortgage was completed in March—that was the mortgage in lieu of cash security. Since the matter of the lease defendant had engaged witness to negotiate other transactions for him—one was a mortgage for $5,000, in March. A second mortgage for the security was also completed in March. The question of the sale of his Zealand Street property, under written instructions from Chang Shun Koo, that was sold for $165,000. The first business he was asked to do for defendant was the lease of No. 14, Des Voeux Road. Witness had no recollection of a letter dated 30th March, said to have been sent by Chang Shun Koo to witness, complaining that the "Daily Press" was still in the premises and had not vacated, as promised, in February. Chang Shun Koo had, as a matter of fact, begun to make all manner of complaints.

A similar letter of the 18th April was produced, but witness had no recollection of receiving that letter either. He had already asked Ho Tung for concessions as a favour, and they were refused, and then the complaints began. The letter produced, dated 18th May, was written by witness to Chang Shun Koo, in which witness said he would ask for the concession from Ho Tung. He did ask for the concession and it was refused. He wrote that letter in Chang Shun Koo's office. Defendant very often asked witness to try and find tenants for him for the premises.

Cross-examined by Mr. Pollock, witness said he showed the letter of 18th April to Ho Tung some time after the agreement had been signed. He did it casually, and was looking through papers when this happened to come to hand, and he picked it up and showed it to him.

Mr. Pollock: Did you never show that authority to Ho Tung before the agreement was signed?

Witness: No, certainly not; I never show my documents to anyone—not in any instance. Defendant mentioned, two or three days before the 20th December, that he was willing to spend $10,000 or $15,000 on alterations. He finally came down to $5,000, and so those terms were not mentioned in the document.

Mr. Pollock: If it was finally agreed that Chang Shun Koo was to spend money on the premises, why was it not mentioned in the agreement?

Witness: I suppose because it was quite understood, or its omission was an oversight. The letter of agreement produced, in duplicate, was in witness's handwriting. He could not tell which one he wrote first. As regards the clause "The tenant will have the benefit of the rents," he believed that was written at the same time as the rest of the section.

Mr. Pollock: Was it not squeezed in afterwards?

Witness: I very often make omissions and then on reading over a document at the time insert the omitted clause.

Mr. Pollock: Didn't Ho Tung—

Witness: No, he didn't.

Mr. Pollock: Mr. Binsley, I am afraid we shall have a difficulty in believing you if you answer questions before they are asked—did not Ho Tung, as a matter of fact, suggest to you to make that addition?

Witness: No, I had no conversation with Ho Tung on the subject.

Mr. Pollock: Is not all this talk about a hotel or boarding-house all talk and nonsense?

Witness: No, it is not, Chang Shun Koo gave me the plans and asked me to help him in establishing the business and I put myself in communication with several hotel-keepers with reference to the business; Mr. Farmer of Macao for one.

Mr. Pollock: Then you represented both parties—Did you get commission from both sides?—Yes.

It must be a paying business. It is, or I would not be in it. The defendant was very anxious for the "Daily Press" to stop on the premises.

Mr. Pollock: Then I put it to you he did not want the premises for a hotel or boarding-house. He said he did.

Mr. Pollock:—You have said you have no recollection of receiving certain letters. Have you a very bad memory?

Witness:—No, I don't think I have a bad memory.

Mr. Pollock:—Here is a receipt for a letter you don't recollect; is that your signature?—Yes, it is—I receive lots of letters from him.

Mr. Pollock: Here's another showing you received a letter on the 23rd May.

Witness: I received several from that writer on the 12th May. Seeing the signatures I must have received a letter on the dates in question, though I have no recollection of them.

Witness, continuing, said that on the occasion he wrote the letter in Chang Shun Koo's office he had considerable conversation with him.

Mr. Pollock: You wrote that letter in consultation of Chang's handing you back a letter you had previously written?

Witness: No, I didn't.

Mr. Pollock: I put it to you that you did, and that he handed you back your letter telling him that the "Daily Press" would vacate in February, and you tore it up.

Witness: No, he did not, and I did not tear up any letter.

6th inst.

Mr. S. Binsley, re-called, said that the old premises of the "Daily Press" had two rooms under the main roof, and the rest were godowns under a separate roof.

His Honour: Is there any path between the two buildings?

Mr. Sharp: No, my Lord, it was only a passage way.

Mr. Binsley: Before we go any further, my Lord, may I make a remark?

His Honour: Oh, certainly!

Mr. Binsley: On Saturday there was a good deal said calling down upon the idea of an hotel or boarding-house being established in the premises. As regards that he received a letter in the beginning of 1905 from Mr. Stephens, the defendant's solicitor, saying that as there was to be a hotel started in the premises he wished to recommend a lady client for the position of manageress. Witness did not keep that letter, but Mr. Stephens would doubtless have a copy.

Mr. Bird, sworn, said he was an architect in the firm of Messrs. Palmer and Turner. He measured up the premises for the alterations in question. He received instructions in December, 1904, from the defendant to make those measurements, and he got the keys from the defendant. On the 27th December defendant's clerk gave him the keys, and he wrote and acknowledged them.

Cross-examined by Mr. Pollock, witness said he got some of the keys from the defendant's servant, but he did not know how the other keys came to his firm. The keys he got were for internal rooms. He was in the building on the ground floor, but he could not say whether Littgens, Einstmann & Co. were on that floor; there was a firm, but he did not know what the firm was. The upper floors were vacant. He did not know if Mr. Chang Shun Koo gave instructions for the bathrooms to be taken away. He only measured the premises, and Mr. Palmer looked after the architect's part of the work.

Mr. Sharp here produced a letter, addressed by Messrs. Deacon, Looker and Deacon, to Mr. Ho Tung, saying that they were instructed by Mr. Chang Shun Koo to state that in consideration of the indemnity to be given by Mr. Ho Tung, Chang Shun Koo was willing to waive the rejoinder. Further correspondence was produced merely reiterating the request for concessions, by Chang Shun Koo, and the refusal of Mr. Ho Tung.

Mr. Pollock then said that defendant denied that there was any intention at any time to run a hotel or boarding-house in No. 14 or 16. As regards the postscript in the agreement an addition was made on the subsequent day. As regards the payment of the rent, it was a matter of common sense that the premises should be in a condition for him to complete the repairs, and the only way for him to do so was by the "Daily Press" going out and vacating the premises. The correspondence showed that the presence of the "Daily Press" was very embarrassing to the defendant, as the work of repairs had to go on, and certain water and other refuse percolated down to the "Daily Press" offices and they very naturally resented it, and correspondence ensued. As to the representation that the "Daily Press" was to vacate the premises in February, as a matter of fact they remained in occupation until the 31st July, i.e., a full month after the rent became payable by Chang Shun Koo. Obviously he could not be expected to pay rent for any premises until he got full possession of them. The "Daily Press" then vacated until so long after they ought to have done so under the agreement made by Mr. Binsley, as Mr. Ho Tung's representative, the defendant not being enabled to complete the alterations and repair to enable them to let the premises until November, they had lost to the extent of $2,700. As regards the letter Mr. Binsley gave Chang Shun Koo, promising to try and secure the concessions asked for, he submitted it was given in exchange for another letter written by Binsley promising that the "Daily Press" would vacate in February, and which letter Binsley once tore up.

Chang Shun Koo, called, said he would prefer to give his evidence in Chinese.

Mr. Pollock: But you can speak English quite well.

Chang Shun Koo: But I prefer to give it in Chinese.

His Honour: If he wishes to speak in Chinese he is entitled to do so.

Witness, continuing, said he had arranged to lease the premises in question, from Mr. Ho Tung. He never at any time contemplated running an hotel either in No. 14 or No. 16. Mr. Binsley came to him and said that Mr. Farmer of the King Edward Hotel wanted to rent the premises for an hotel, and witness said alright if the terms were satisfactory. This was said before Binsley had returned him the contract note. He remembered the contract was signed on the 20th December, and it was a few days after that Binsley made the offer. The proposal for running the place as an hotel came from Binsley, and certainly not from witness. When witness was asked by Binsley to sign the contract he just refused, because all the conditions were not there. In clause seven the rent was arranged to be paid over to the landlord, and witness wanted to know why he should pay the rent to the landlord, when the place was under repairs from January to June. Binsley explained that it referred to the rent due before January.

Mr. Pollock: Never mind about what you thought. Come to the question of the postscript, when did you sign it?

Witness: I signed it two or three days after I signed the contract.

Mr. Pollock: Who made the addition of the postscript?

Witness: Mr. Binsley.

Mr. Pollock: When he brought it to you to sign what did he tell you?

Witness: He told me a lot of things.

Mr. Pollock: Quite so, but tell us what they were.

Witness: Well, he came to me in a great hurry and said the post script was an omission and it must be signed, and I signed it. He also said that no one had power to order the "Daily Press" to vacate. Mr. Binsley told me that if I refused to sign the postscript it would put him to trouble with Mr. Ho Tung, who would think he was not carrying out the business properly. I said that if I had to sign the postscript it would be a great hardship on me as I did not know when the "Daily Press" would vacate. Then they had a long discussion and Binsley at last said he promised that the "Daily Press" would vacate in January or February. I said, if that is so, give me something in writing; and Binsley took up a piece of paper and wrote on it that the "Daily Press" would vacate in February. It was written in English, and signed "S. B." That letter was no longer in existence as Mr. Binsley destroyed it in the third week in May. When he gave me that letter then I signed the postscript.

Continuing, witness said on the 30th March he wrote a letter to Mr. Binsley, and that letter was signed for by Binsley. That letter pointed out that he had learned that the "Daily Press" would vacate for some months and if that was so he would not bear the loss, and asked Binsley to see that the concessions which Mr. Ho Tung had promised him through Binsley were given him. He heard from Mr. Deacon in his office that the "Daily Press" would vacate the premises until the end of July. Witness had from January to June to complete the repairs, but if the "Daily Press" would not move out then he must suffer loss. The concession he referred to was that he was to get an extra month to complete the repairs for every month that the "Daily Press" stayed on the premises. That concession was promised by Binsley as Ho Tung's representative. At that time witness still had the written statement made by Binsley that the "Press" would leave in April. The letter of 12th April, addressed by Messrs. Deacon, Looker and Deacon to Mr. Ho Tung, was written under witness's instructions, and the same day witness wrote to Binsley, and sent the letter at once, but could not remember whether he sent it in a chit-book or with loose sheets. He remembered receiving an acknowledgment of receipt of that letter. On the 10th May Messrs. Deacon, Looker and Deacon sent to witness the drafts of the three documents, but witness said he would not agree to the suggestion of an indemnity instead of the mortgages signing the lease. Mr. Deacon advised him not to agree.

Mr. Pollock: Which Mr. Deacon?

Witness: Old Deacon advised me to refuse to sign.

Witness said as regards the security he did not suggest that he should give a second mortgage on another property instead of the $7,500 cash. While the negotiations were going on, he had a discussion with Mr. Binsley in which he said why should the repairs be paid for by witness? Binsley said that if there had been a clause in the agreement that the landlord should pay the repairs bill then witness would not have had to do so, and Binsley then suggested the second mortgage. Witness wanted a mortgage for security, he wanted some cash very badly. Binsley said he would give $10,000 on mortgage on the other property, and then witness said that out of that $7,500 could be used as the security required. It was not a sudden new idea after the signing of the contract. What Binsley said about it the other day was not true. In May, witness sent letters to Mr. Ho Tung, one on the 12th and another on the 22nd May. Both those letters were actually sent. These were the letters complaining that the "Daily Press" were still occupying the premises No. 14, Des Voeux Road. Witness saw Mr. Ho Tung in May between the 12th and the 22nd, because the letter of the 22nd was written after he had seen him. At that interview, witness asked Ho Tung to confirm the promises made by Binsley. Mr. Ho Tung asked what promises Binsley had made, and witness said that Binsley had promised that the "Daily Press" would vacate in February and that as they had not done so it had inflicted great hardship on him. Mr. Ho Tung then said, "Why do you not arrange clearly and distinctly with Binsley?" Witness said he had already done so. Then Ho Tung asked him, if that were so, "How is it you signed a clause allowing the 'Daily Press' to remain?" Witness said he signed that clause because Binsley had promised him that the "Press" would move out in February. Mr. Ho Tung then asked him what proof he had that Binsley made that promise, and witness mentioned the letter that Binsley had written, but said it had been destroyed by Binsley. Mr. Ho Tung then asked him what the Binsley promised him, and he replied that was about all. Nothing was said about his scheme or syndicate for a hotel or boarding-house in the premises. The letter produced was written by Binsley on the 16th May, in witness's office. Binsley called there, and witness came from his family house when a servant told him Binsley was there. He entered his office he saw Binsley put a piece of blotting-paper over a letter he was writing. Binsley asked witness for the slip of paper he had previously given him. Witness asked him to give it, and Binsley said he wanted it because it only mentioned the "Press" vacating, but made no mention of Ho Tung's concessions, and Binsley then gave him another paper. Witness then asked Binsley to return the slip, but Binsley got very angry and scolded witness, and after some argument Binsley tore up the letter and put the pieces in his pocket, and then being still angry he walked away.

Mr. Pollock: Well, now as regards the continuance of the "Daily Press" to occupy the premises, in what way was it a hardship to you?

Witness: I was unable to complete the repairs and so I could not let the premises, and so I lost money. If they had gone out in February I could have finished the repairs in June, but as a matter of fact they were not fully completed until December. Witness, continuing, said he never agreed to spend $10,000 to $15,000 on the premises, nor did he offer to do so with a view to get Mr. Ho Tung to take a lower rent. He was not aware of the existence of either of the mortgages on the premises when he entered into the agreement.

Mr. Pollock: It has been suggested that you would have had great difficulty in securing tenants.

Witness: I had some proposed tenants but lost them as I could not put them into possession when they wanted the premises. "Marty" waited and he had now moved in. If he had been able to let the whole premises the rent would have been more than $2,700 a month. There was no difficulty in procuring tenants as there was a demand for premises at that time.

Mr. Pollock: Now, do you understand you that at the one interview you had with Mr. Ho Tung, he promised you nothing?

Witness: He did promise me something.

Mr. Pollock: Oh! I understood not. Well, what did he promise?

Witness: He promised to put the matter through and that I should not lose anything.

Mr. Pollock: Nothing definite, or in writing.

Witness: No, nothing more, and it was a verbal promise.

Cross-examined by Mr. Sharp, witness said he had a fair amount of experience in property dealings in Hongkong. He had lots of dealings in property. He never advertised in the Chinese papers that he was a capitalist wanting to purchase property. He had property to a large extent in the Colony, both in Kowloon and Victoria. He sold a property in Zealand Street lately through Mr. Binsley for a very large sum. With regard to the letter witness sent to Mr. Ho Tung, and which the latter destroyed, and was pre-occupied in witness's handwriting, and was pre-occupied in witness's copy book. The book produced was the book, and press-copy in the book was that of the letter of the 12th May. That letter bore the date 19th May.

Mr. Sharp: Has not that copy been altered in the copy-book?—

WEST RIVER OUTRAGE.

BRITISH VESSEL FIRED ON.

WITHIN SIGHT OF BRITISH GUNBOAT.

Another of those dastardly outrages for which the West River has of late become notorious occurred in Samshui harbour yesterday morning, when the British steamer Samut was fired on by Chinese from the shore and within sight of H.M.S. Robin. That the natives in the West River districts have gone a bit farther in firing at a British trading vessel within hailing distance of a British man-of-war, is something which amounts to more than boldness.

As related to us by a gentleman who happened to be on board the Samut, at the time of this extraordinary occurrence, it appears that at 11.20 o'clock yesterday forenoon the British steamer Samut, 105 tons, Captain Black, which plies between this port and Wuchow, touching at different West River ports on the voyage, picked up her anchor and was steaming out of Samshui harbour when suddenly she was fired on by some scoundrels from the shore. One of the shots entered the first-class Chinese saloon, while another bullet struck the skylight, smashing the glass to atoms, a fragment of which wounded one of the ship's commodores, who was sitting in the saloon at the time. Had the Chinaman been a little more to the right, the bullet would have entered his head. However, the Samut was stopped and H.M.S. Robin, which was about leaving the port at the time, hailed by the captain of the steamer. The Robin came up to the Samut and after making fast to the latter vessel, both ships returned to Samshui harbour. The Samshui harbour-master was summoned for and when he arrived, Captain Black and himself boarded the Robin and the matter was reported to Lieut. Comdr. Vaughan. After some little time these three gentlemen returned on board the Samut to inspect the damage done. A search for the bullets was made and Mr. G. A. Hill, the chief officer of the steamer, discovered one of the bullets lying in one of the bunks, and handed it to the Commander of the Robin. That gentleman immediately sent for the gunner of his ship and when the bullet was examined it was found to be of the .4 pattern. After a full report had been made the Samut again heaved her anchor and left the harbour after a delay of over an hour and a half.

At the present moment no theory can be advanced as to why—if pirates they were—the perpetrators of the deed should have chosen daylight, and what was more, in the presence of a gunboat, to attempt to hold up a British ship. However, the Commander of the Robin and the Samshui harbour-master have the matter in hand, and for the benefit of British trade, it is to be hoped that they will bring their combined energies to bear on this matter, which is of vital importance to shipping trading in the waters of the delta.

THE RICE CRISIS.

Shanghai, 31st May.

We understand that, owing to the high price for rice in this part of the country which has already led to riots and raids on grain boats, H. E. Viceroy Chou Fu of Nanking has memorialised the Throne on the subject asking for special powers to prohibit the export of grain from one place to another. In this connection we also learn that a recent application from a foreign Consul to the Shanghai Taotai for a permit to allow the export of a large quantity of rice to Harbin, Manchuria, has been refused. As the British Treaty requires Chinese officials to give six weeks' notice by proclamation whenever there is an intention to stop the export of rice from any Treaty port, the Viceroy at Nanking has instructed the Customs Taotais of this Port, Chinkiang, Wuhu, and Kiukiang to issue the necessary proclamations without delay.

In reply to a question made by H. E. Jui Chong Taotai of this port, the Chinese Chamber of Commerce explains that the sudden abnormal rise in the price of rice in Shanghai and vicinity was due primarily to the prohibition of rice export which threw an immense quantity of the cereal upon the hands of rice merchants and brokers, which clogged the market. Then came telegrams from the Yangtze Valley reporting the floods in Hunan which led holders of the cereal to raise its price, daily increasing in dearthness from the fact that rice was being urgently needed in Hunan. The Chamber of Commerce also assures the Shanghai Taotai that it has conferred with the Committee of the Rice-God about the price of that commodity, with every prospect of success.

Dispatches received from Hanchow, Soochow, Nanking, and Anching, the provincial capital of Chekiang, Kiangsu, and Anhui, respectively, all report rice riots in various parts of the provinces mentioned above, culminating in free fights between grain shop employees and the poorer classes, in which generally the shop people had the worst of matters, but which always ended with the restoration of order upon the appearance of the authorities and troops; not, however, until after officials had given a promise to make the grain shops lower their prices considerably. In the present temper of the Peking Government and high provincial authorities there does not seem to be any danger of serious disturbances in the interior, whatever the secret societies may wish to do. All such disturbances are merely spasmodic.—N. C. D. News.

THE SITUATION IN TAIREN.

COMMERCIAL AND SOCIAL CONDITIONS.

The Osaka Shinpo publishes the following communication from Tairen:—“Things are very quiet here, just as if fire had broken out and swept across the harbour, where until towards the end of last year so many vessels were seen going and coming, and the landing and shipping of goods was being busily carried on. The business at shops dealing in miscellaneous goods kept by the Japanese has fallen to one-sixth of the sales in December last. Japanese drapers, who find the licensed quarters their best customers, are now in a very awkward position, are unable to collect their bills, which have reached an enormous sum, and they are being pressed by the home merchants for settlement of their accounts. The sales of flour and beer alone continue favourable, as the demand for these commodities among the Chinese is steadily increasing. The work of the Society for the Rescue of Women in Manchuria has proved most successful, and great credit is due to that organisation. The work of the Society, as its name indicates, is the rescue of unfortunate Japanese women in Manchuria. A large majority of these women are condemned en masse as immoral, but this is far from being the case. Many are unfortunate creatures who have been abducted from Nagasaki or Amakusa by false promises. Quite a number of such women have been rescued by the Society, and the Osaka Shinpo has arranged to bring these women back to Japan at half-rate. Lieut. Colonel Hibiki, Director of the Military stores in Tairen, is giving valuable assistance to the work of the Society.”

DUMPING MADR-EAST.

STRANGE CASE AT WANCHAI.

5th inst.

Many and varied are the ways Chinese employ in dumping the dead bodies of children; but in many cases they are arrested and made to pay heavily for the offence. Some are content with leaving the bundle on the side-walk, but that incurs too much risk of detection. Others there are who throw the bundle over a window, but the latest trick which was related to us this morning is ingenious. A gentleman, residing in a house in Morrison Hill Road—near the Police Recreation Club—looking out of his window noticed some children playing on a bit of waste land at the side of his house. Near them was a basket. A few hours later he saw the basket was still in its place, but he took no particular notice, thinking all the time that the children had forgotten it. On leaving the house in the afternoon his eye again fell on the basket, and as a matter of curiosity he went to examine the basket. Removing the piece of clothing which covered it, he noticed that the basket looked as if it were full of rice. He turned the basket over and found that there was a layer of peas below the rice, and below that at the bottom of the basket, the body of a dead child. This is no doubt as far as it goes, a good trick. Had it been a Chinaman and not a European who had found the basket, he would have taken the supposed basket of rice to his house. Information was given to the police, and the body of the child removed to the morgue.

"I WANT MY MONEY."

IGNORANT WOMAN'S BEHAVIOUR IN COURT.

6th inst.

The peace and quietness that attended the hearing of a case at the Magistracy about 10 o'clock yesterday, was disturbed by the yells of an old woman outside the Court, because she was ejected from Mr. Melbourn's court. Her conduct was such that she was ushered into the waiting room by constable Fox, but as she got more disorderly there, the officer took hold of her, rushed her into Arbutnot Road and—so as not to disturb the proceedings of the Court—conducted her to the charge-room of the Station, where she was charged with being disorderly at the Magistracy. She was then placed in a cell. This virago, it appears, went up to the Police Court yesterday to watch a case in which one of her relations was charged. The case she was interested in was no sooner over, than the old woman, on leaving the Court, espied a man in the dock, and with a yell, she bounded for the dock to seize him, but was stopped and ejected. The man she attempted to get at was being examined for his extradition to Canton, and it was stated he borrowed $10 from some time ago, but the last sight of him immediately afterwards. When she saw him unexpectedly in the dock yesterday she could not control herself, hence her misbehaviour and forcible rejection. She appeared before Mr. F. A. Hazeland at the Magistracy this morning to give an account of her conduct. The widow pleaded “not guilty.” Evidence was then heard.

Inspector Warnock said that she wanted back the $10, and as she was not allowed near the prisoner she became noisy.

His Worship—Will you promise not to return here again?

Defendant—Yes.

As defendant had no money, his Worship discharged her with a caution.

COMMISSIONER LOCKHART OF WEI-HAI-WEI.

AN APPRECIATION.

Writing to the N. C. D. News under date 23rd ult., a Chinaman, correspondent, says:—On the 16th, Commissioner Lockhart arrived from Wei-hai-wei to pay a visit to H. E. Governor Yang, who put him up in good shape in the Memorial Temple of Li Hung-chang, which is charmingly situated on the edge of Chinan's famous Lake. From the time of his arrival his stay was one long series of entertainments and polite attentions, which reminded of the fêtes which attended his first visit to Chinan three years ago. On Saturday evening, the 19th, the Governor gave a feast in his honour, to which were invited all the British residents and a few others; on Monday a general feast, at which Commissioner Lockhart was the principal guest, was given by all the officials to all the foreign residents in town of any standing whatever, and theatricals were provided for their entertainment all through the dinner; and finally, last evening, a dinner was given which, I understand, was for British subjects only. Sunday was spent in a trip to the beautiful temples which lie ten miles south-east of the city in company with the British Consul, Mr. Clennell, and his wife and others, the refreshments being provided for the party by the Foreign Office. As was the case when he was here three years ago, Commissioner Lockhart made a very pleasant impression indeed by his cordial manner and hearty good will toward all who were thrown in contact with him. If he finally leaves Shantung, because of Wei-hai-wei being handed back to China, he will leave very pleasant memories behind him of his stay here as Commissioner and as a visitor in the capital.

MONOPOLY AND "SQUEEZE."

To the Editor of the "HONGKONG TELEGRAPH."

Sir,—Those of your readers who read the reports of company meetings which are published from time to time in your columns, could not but have been struck by a suggestion mildly dropped, in the course of his speech, by the chairman of the "Star" Ferry Company, Ltd., at the annual meeting of the company held on the 30th ult. After reviewing the work of the past year, and explaining the reason for the increased expenditure, and consequent diminished dividend declared for the period, the chairman said "whether remedy be found in an increase of fares or otherwise, will be decided later on." Quite so; but who will "decide" it? Will the company arbitrarily increase the already exorbitant rates of fares, without first feeling the pulse of the public in the matter, and then expect the public, its patrons, from whom it derives its profits and dividends, to sit quietly with closed mouths and folded hands, and let the company squeeze it for all it is worth? The cost of running ferries at home is greater than it is here, and yet the fares there only average 2d for trips of the same length as that from here to Kowloon, while the boats are usually of a better class as regards accommodation. Compare that with the 3d rate prevailing here, where coal and labour are cheaper, and let one find, if one can, any good and sufficient reason for an increase to that rate. It may be said that the cost of building the new wharf, which was opened in April, is a one good reason. But, for the time being, the cost of running ferries at home is greater than it is here, and yet the fares there only average 2d for trips of the same length as that from here to Kowloon, while the boats are usually of a better class as regards accommodation. It may be said that the cost of building the new wharf, which was opened in April, is a one good reason. But, for the time being, the cost of running ferries at home is greater than it is here, and yet the fares there only average 2d for trips of the same length as that from here to Kowloon, while the boats are usually of a better class as regards accommodation. Compare that with the 3d rate prevailing here, where coal and labour are cheaper, and let one find, if one can, any good and sufficient reason for an increase to that rate. A JUNKMASTER had this morning, at the Police Court, to pay the nominal fine of $1—imposed by Mr. C. A. D. Melbourne—for blocking Murray Pier, yesterday, with his junk.

SERGEANT O'Sullivan prosecuted two coolies before Mr. F. A. Hazeland, at the Magistracy on Monday, for stealing from a married woman a gold finger ring and a pair of trousers, at Hui-chom, yesterday. Defendants denied the charge. Evidence was heard, and his Worship sentenced them to three weeks' hard labour and six hours' stocks each. Defendants at the expiration of the term of imprisonment will be banished.

CHIAN HAK, a boarding-house runner, performed an athletic feat in the harbour on Sunday, and had it not been that Sergt. Wilden was near at hand he would have got off well, but as the officer witnessed the feat, it cost Chan dearly. At the Police Court on Monday he was charged with going on board the steamer Hanani without permission from the captain. Sergeant Wilden said that the defendant "jumped" on board the ship while she was going to sea, and Mr. F. A. Hazeland fined defendant $50, with the option of two months' hard labour.

A seaman on board s.s. Anglo-Canadian was arraigned before Mr. F. A. Hazeland, at the Magistracy on Monday, with being drunk and disorderly in Ice House Street, on Sunday, and also with assaulting a Chinese constable while in the execution of his duty. Defendant pleaded ignorance. It appeared that the seaman, asleep in the side-chamber, had been told to get up by the constable's hand and struck him. Inspector Warnock said defendant was very disorderly when he arrived at the station. His Worship imposed a fine of $2 on the first charge, and $3 on the second.

At about 6.30 o'clock yesterday morning, an accident occurred at No. 3, Wing Shing Street, and as a result a Chinese girl, about eight years of age, died some hours later. Although the accident occurred early in the morning, the police were not notified until last night, after the child had died. According to the story told the police by the mother of the child, it is related that, at the time mentioned, her elder daughter and the other child were in the kitchen. The elder was pouring out boiling water from an earthenware pot into a basin for the younger one to wash its face. The handle of the pot was hot and as she could bear the heat no longer she dropped the pot of boiling water and scalded her sister. Instead of informing the police authorities of the occurrence and seeing that the unfortunate child was removed to the hospital, the old woman summoned a Chinese doctor. The child died the same afternoon.

THE other day a Chinaman is reported to have been killed in a house at Talai Yui, Bangkok, as the result of a duel with another Chinaman. The story came to the Bangkok Times through a trustworthy man living in that district and, though these tales are hard to verify, is probably true. The method they adopted in fighting is not familiar to most "fairangs," and may therefore be of some interest. They fought with the two forefingers of each hand, stabbing each other with these in the region of the spleen and at the same level on the other side of the body. A strongly built coolie using the weight of his body could certainly give a nasty blow in that part of the body, even with two fingers, and repeated blows of the kind are said usually to prove fatal. The men who go in for this kind of contest practise every morning stabbing bags of rice or paddy with these finger-tips they can use them like a piece of iron. When a man gets a good blow in, he can sometimes croak his fingers so that in withdrawing he pulls a rib outward till it breaks.

ABOUT two hundred Chinamen, natives of Amoy, Pakhoi and Swatow, who were alleged to have been "kidnapped" and brought to Hongkong for the purposes of emigration—the particulars of which is reported in another column—crowded the compound outside the charge-room of the Central Police Station, on Friday. As the leader of the "gang" was under arrest, these men are being examined by the police and the Registrar-General, after which they will be returned to their homes. We understand that the majority of these men are unemployed and some are farmers in the coast ports. A party of men, who live by kidnapping, send scouts into the country and tell the men that if they come to Hongkong work will be obtained for them at the rate of $3 per month. When they arrive in the Colony they are either sent to the Straits Settlements, or sold. In this instance, we are informed that nearly all the boarding-houses in the Colony were full, and hearing of this and from information received, the police made the arrest and rescued the men.

A TREMENDOUS noise, followed by some excitement, was occasioned in Wellington Street on Thursday afternoon, when a Chinaman came bounding down a staircase and rolled on to the sidewalk. He was picked up and it was ascertained that he had broken his left hand in rolling down the staircase. He was sent to hospital and his assailant arrested. On Friday, at the Magistracy, a Chinaman was charged with causing grievous bodily harm to the complainant. The complainant is a tailor keeping a shop at No. 55, Wellington Street. The defendant was his jabai. Yesterday afternoon, it was stated, defendant asked complainant for a loan of some money. Complainant refused, saying that defendant was a bad character and to keep a few days ago and up to yesterday the garments were not ready for delivery. This caused a quarrel, and a scuffle ensued, in which defendant was alleged to have picked complainant up and threw him down the stairs, causing the damage already mentioned. At this stage, a letter was received by his Worship from a solicitor, who was interested in the case, asking for a postponement. His Worship remanded the case until the 17th instant. Bail $150.

AN unemployed Indian watchman has of late given the Police at West Point some trouble, and notwithstanding the many chances that were given him he paid no heed, consequently Inspector Collett settled it this morning. This Indian was formerly employed as watchman to a firm at No. 28, Salt Fish Lane. He was recently discharged. Since he was dismissed the watchman has been wont to return to the shop, after they had closed for the night, and bang the door and demand an explanation as to why he was discharged. The police were called by the shopkeeper on two different occasions, but he refused to prosecute. Last night, the Indian, taking advantage of the shopkeeper's return and raised another row. This time the Indian was arrested, but still the shopkeeper insisted that it was not his desire to prosecute. Inspector Collett informed the shopkeeper that this time the police were going to prosecute and that the shop people would be subpoenaed. The shopkeeper did not like this and agreed to prosecute. This morning the Indian was placed before Mr. F. Hazeland. He was fined $10, and bound over in the sum of $100 to be of good behaviour for one year.

ON Sunday afternoon, two coolies had a heated argument in an opium divan in Queen's Road West about the question of some stolen property and the result was that they came to blows. In the scuffle one of the combatants produced a pocket knife and stabbed the other in the chest, which necessitated his instant removal to hospital and the arrest of his assailant. At the West Point Police Station the coolie, in his statement, said: "He troubled me and I stabbed him." He was placed before Mr. F. A. Hazeland on Monday, charged with maliciously wounding the other man. The police received news from the hospital to the effect that the wound is of a serious character. In the circumstance, they applied to the Court for the case to be adjourned. His Worship granted an adjournment.

A FEW days ago we mentioned that a blind boy was knocked down and run over by a heavily laden truck in Connaught Road Central. One of the coolies, who had charge of the truck, was arrested, but owing to the lad's condition the case had to be adjourned until his discharge from hospital. Before Mr. F. A. Hazeland, at the Police Court on Friday, the coolie, who was with the truck, was brought up on remand, charged with carelessly driving it along the public street. The blind boy, who was this morning discharged from hospital, appeared in Court with both hands in bandages, one of his fingers having been amputated. The charge was proved, and his Worship fined the reckless coolie $10. On the boy leaving the Court the owner of the truck presented him with $20 as compensation. This, we might say, was done of his own choice, as the Court did not suggest any compensation to the lad. Inspector Warnock prosecuted.

ABOUT one o'clock on Wednesday afternoon a servant girl, employed at No. 4, Lyndhurst Terrace, was sent by her employers to a money-changer's in Queen's Road Central, to obtain two dollar notes in exchange for silver. Just as she left the shop, a coolie rushed up to her, snatched the notes from her hand and bolted down the road. One or two lookers-on gave chase and arrested the rascal, who was removed to the Central Police Station. On Thursday, Sergeant Fenton proceeded against the coolie. Evidence was taken. Defendant said that the girl dropped the note and he picked it up for her. His claim was not appreciated by Mr. Hazeland, who sentenced him to undergo a term of three months' hard labour, and in lieu of one day's imprisonment to be exposed in the stocks for six hours, and furthermore to receive two whippings in gaol—each whipping to consist of twelve strokes—twenty-four strokes in all.

SORRY.

There is much that makes me sorry as I journey down life's way.
And I seem to see more paths in poor human lives each day.

I'm sorry for the strong, brave men who shield
the weak from harm,
But who, in their own troubled hours, find no protecting arm.

I'm sorry for the victors, who have reached success, to stand
As targets for the arrows shot by envious failure's hand.

I'm sorry for the generous hearts who freely shared their wine,
But drink alone the gall of tears in fortune's
dear decline.

I'm sorry for the anguished hearts that break with passion's strain,
But I'm sorer for the poor, starved souls that never knew love's pain.

Who hunger on through barren years, not tasting joys they crave,
For sadder far is such a lot than weeping o'er a grave.

I'm sorry for the souls that come unwelcomed into birth,
I'm sorry for the unloved old who cumber up
the earth,

I'm sorry for the suffering poor in life's great maelstrom hurled;
In truth I'm sorry for them all who make this aching world.

But underneath whatever seems sad, and is not understood,
I know there lies, hid from our sight, a mighty gem of good.

And this belief stands firm by me, my sermon,
motto, text—
The sorriest things in this life will seem grandest in the next.

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox in "Over-Sea" Mail.

SEA VETERAN'S WRONGS.

CAPTAIN TELL OF FIFTY YEARS' VOYAGES.

The captain and crew of the steamer "Knight Commander" which was sunk in the Pacific in July 1904 by the Russian Admiral Yessen are still seeking compensation for the loss of their belongings.

Meanwhile Captain Durrant, who has been celebrating his sea jubilee, has described some of his adventures at sea during the last half-century.

"I was apprenticed on the barque Birch-grove a vessel of 500 tons, in 1856," he said.
"I served seven years in this primitive craft for £50, and after sixteen years at sea took command of one of the famous China tea clippers, the Spirit of the North."

"We took part in the exciting ocean regattas which were carried on by those beautiful ships in their efforts to get home first with the early season's tea. My record in this craft was a voyage from the Thames to Colombo in eighty-eight days."

"My first steam command was an old nine-foot screw boat called the Trent in 1880.
Since then I have served almost continuously in steam, and was twenty years with the owners of the Knight Commander."

TOO OLD.

"The sinking of that ship appears to have brought me ill-luck, for, with all my experience, and in spite of being as hale and hearty as a boy, I cannot now get a berth. Owners nowadays want young blood the old sea-dog is superfluous."

Captain Durrant then entered into the case
of the Knight Commander.

"Our claims upon the Russian Government are still unsatisfied," he said. "All the crew lost most of their belongings by the foundering of the vessel. Personally I put my own loss in effects at about £175."

"The Foreign Office still has the matter in hand. On January 24 last I had a letter from the Secretary stating that the Government are awaiting the text of the judgment of the Supreme Prize Court at St. Petersburg.
Whether this has since been received I do not know."

"I twice interviewed Sir Charles Hardinge in St. Petersburg on my way back from Vladivostok. He was most emphatic as to the illegality of the Russian admiral's action. Preserving that our hold had been chock-a-block with contraband—which, to my knowledge, was certainly not the case—the proper course was to have sent us as a prize to a Russian port."

"The German steamer Thra was sunk under very similar circumstances on the following day.
The Russian Government paid her owners £37,000."

At length one may hope, that the scandal of the trial of children in all the surroundings of a police-court, and their detention before trial in prison cells, will in a few weeks be a thing of the past. The punishment of child delinquents who ought to be dealt with by parents or schoolmasters more tends to manufacture criminals.—Titbits.

THE fact that Mr. Thomas A. Edison has bought a cobalt mine in Ontario has led to the disclosure that he is using cobalt in his new storage batteries in place of nickel and lead.
This must lead to an unexpected demand for great quantities of the mineral, and to a sudden increase in the value of the land where it exists. A new source of wealth for Canada is thus opened.

DONE BY TRYING.

Nobody can tell what he can do till he tries.
When a thing ought to be done the modern spirit moves us to keep working away at it until it is done. In the face of this idea the "impossible" vanishes. Where there's a will, there's a way. "If we could but rob cod liver oil of its sickening taste and smell and then combine it with two or three other ingredients we should possess the best remedy in the world for certain diseases that are now practically incurable." So said a famous English physi-

HONGKONG, SATURDAY, JUNE 9, 1906.

NINGPO IN 1905.

Contrasted with the report on the trade of Shanghai for 1905, the record presented by Commissioner Lenox Simpson for the district within his jurisdiction, viz., Ningpo, bears unfavourable comparison. Whereas in the case of the more southern port a "record" was established for last year the trade of Ningpo for the same period shows a decline in the collection to the extent of nearly 11k. Tls. 22,000, which is compensated to a slight extent by an increase in the import duties of 11k. Tls. 6,000. Coast trade duties and tonnage and transit dues all exhibit small decreases; but the real deficit is in opium, the duty and skin combined showing a shrinkage of no less than 11k. Tls. 44,000. The total revenue collection was 11k. Tls. 613,877. Mr. Simpson writes:—"The spring and autumn crops in and around the district were reported to have been good. The rice harvest was above the average, and prices were on a reasonable level throughout the twelvemonth, much to the satisfaction of the poorer classes. The supply of pinesy tea was exceptionally short, owing to the excessive rainfall during the earlier months of the year, and the business has been an unprofitable one. The total value of the trade of the port was close on 191 million taels, which shows a falling off of nearly 10 per cent. as compared with the 1904 figures. The value of the imports, foreign plus native, aggregated 13 million taels; the exports amounted to a value of a little over 6 million taels, or 11k. Tls. 1,800,000 less than the year before." One of Hongkong's staple industries figured rather prominently in the trade returns, for we are told that there was a large business done in sugar, which is one of Ningpo's most important imports. During the year 334,000 piculs, valued at 11k. Tls. 1,600,000, were landed, of which 162,000 piculs was refined sugar from the Taikop and China Sugar Company's refineries at Hongkong. Ho-Ilo varieties, owing to their relative cheapness and good appearance, have gained a strong hold on the market, and the number of direct steamers from the Philippines bringing full cargoes is increasing. Little or nothing was done in Formosan grades, owing to depression in prices caused by Ho-Ilo competition. It is reported that Hongkong refined was the only sugar which gave the dealers a profitable return. There was an increase of nearly 22 per cent. in the importation of all kinds. The remarks in the report on the subject of coinage now so keenly debated are worth noting. It is stated that Mexican dollars to the value of 11k. Tls. 130,000 was imported, also copper coins (10-cash pieces) worth 11k. Tls. 106,000 from Hangchow Mint. Dollars equal in value to 11k. Tls. 673,625 were shipped to Shanghai. Respecting the new copper coinage—a subject which has attracted widespread attention and been acrimoniously debated from every point of view—there is nothing to be added from the experience of Ningpo. The 10-cash pieces were introduced into that port in the same manner as elsewhere, by an amicable arrangement between the provincial authorities and the numerous cash shop proprietors. Handy to use, clean to the touch, and of effective design, these coins immediately sprung into favour, as marking an advance, welcome to everyone, on the questionable copper cash coinage which has done service for so many centuries. But this reception, cordial as it was, was destined to be forgotten quickly. Soon it became learnt by the populace in general, and the exchange manipulators in particular, that there would be no limit to the output of the new coins and that all market would soon be flooded with them. This, coupled with the fact that the important rise in the price of silver upset many calculations and put the white metal at a high premium, soon swept away the early confidence and caused a severe fall in the value of the new coins. Regarding the cotton milling industry the report observes that the business of the Tung Chi Yuan Cotton Mill was highly prosperous. The mill worked steadily day and night throughout the year, the output reaching 38,000 piculs, of which, however, only a small portion passed through the Customs. Another cotton mill, promoted by a rival Chinese company, with a capital of $600,000, is now in course of erection on the other side of the river, opposite the Settlement. The machinery has been selected in England by a Japanese engineer, and the technical staff will be composed of men of this nationality. Thus is seen another instance of the inroads the Japanese are making into the industrial and commercial institutions of the Chinese.

COURT ACCOMMODATION.

The urgent need for larger accommodation in the Supreme Court was never, perhaps, better exemplified than it was yesterday, when his Honour the Justice took his seat to dispose of the weekly general summary list. Every solicitor in the Colony, without exception, appeared to be engaged on behalf of one or other of the numerous litigants, with the result that, not being able to find places at the table provided for them, they were forced to occupy the Press table, (unoccupied by the members of the Press at the time) the jury box, and the witness's seats, while the over-flow had to stand about the body of the Court-room, until their turn came to be heard, after which they immediately quitted the Court. And yet, withal, there is a good deal of room wasted by the big and quite unnecessary spaces reserved and enclosed for spectators, which, even when most interesting and important cases are being heard, are never more than half occupied, at most, in either Court. The removal of some of the front seats and the accommodation of another table, would surely be appreciated by the legal fraternity, and there is no good reason why it should not be provided.

"THE SURPRISE OF HIS LIFE."

A correspondent writes to tell us that he got the surprise of his life on Thursday last, which he has not got over yet. High exchange and high prices have joggled along hand in hand so long that he, probably like everybody else, had quite given up all hope of better things to come. However, on Thursday he went to make his usual weekly purchases of supplies from the compradore he has long dealt with, and upon obtaining his parcels, he put down on the counter the exact amount he had been paying all along, when to his astonishment the "man behind the counter" handed him back 10% of his money, with the laconic remark, "can sell now little more cheap." The man had never been asked for any rebate, nor was any reduction in prices even hinted at to him, at any time by our correspondent, which made the incident all the more astonishing. "I hold no brief for the compradore, and moreover, as he would, no doubt, be averse to the possible mobbing that might follow, both from too eager purchasers and irate rivals in the business, I abstain from mentioning his name, or giving his address," concludes our correspondent. We may add that the example of the compradore in question might well be emulated by traders in a more general way in the Colony, to the benefit of their patrons and without unfair disadvantage to themselves.

AN unemployed Indian watchman has of late given the Police at West Point some trouble, and notwithstanding the many chances that were given him he paid no heed, consequently Inspector Collett settled it this morning. This Indian was formerly employed as watchman to a firm at No. 28, Salt Fish Lane. He was recently discharged. Since he was dismissed the watchman has been wont to return to the shop, after they had closed for the night, and bang the door and demand an explanation as to why he was discharged. The police were called by the shopkeeper on two different occasions, but he refused to prosecute. Last night, the Indian, taking advantage of the shopkeeper, returned and raised another row. This time the Indian was arrested, but still the shopkeeper intimated that it was not his desire to prosecute. Inspector Collett informed the shopkeeper that this time the police were going to prosecute and that the shopkeeper would be subpoenaed. The shopkeeper did not like this and agreed to prosecute. This morning the Indian was placed before Mr. F. Hazeland. He was fined $10, and bound over in the sum of $100 to be of good behaviour for one year.

THE AMERICAN MEAT SCANDALS.

AUSTRALIA'S POSITION.

A representative of the Telegraph waited this morning upon the Queensland Government Commissioner concerning the recent revelations published as to the nature of the meat products canned in Chicago.

Mr. Jones said, "the condition of affairs has long been known, not alone to those interested in the industry, but to many of the general public. Some twelve months since Pearson's Weekly published articles exposing the nefarious utilization of putrid and diseased carcasses, also the foul state of the slaughter-houses and packing rooms, and the frequently filthy as well as diseased condition of many of the men employed. Personally, I never make any attempt to criticize the products of other countries. I prefer to introduce Australian goods upon their actual merits. If we cannot compete then we must take a back seat. This nonsensical talk, however, that Australian canners have paid too little attention to the get-up of their products, using awkward-looking tins, with hideous unsanitary labels, does not hold good. As a matter of fact, when I was in Brisbane at Christmas, our packers were exhibiting side by side our cans with the American article, got up at most in perfect imitation of our own. Anyhow, as close as the trade-marks law would allow them. The reason that we have not been able to compete with the Americans in the canned meat industry has been purely a matter of price. This more especially in the markets of the Orient. Now, at the present moment, beef is very dear in Australia, as high as 22/- per 100 lbs dressed, yet this is considerably cheaper than ruling rates in the American market. We have the most complete boiling-down works, with the very latest machinery, expert managers and skilled artisans. There is not anything good and labour-saving which the American packers have that we do not also control. If our meat is cheaper (the splendid quality is acknowledged) and the cost of canning and production equal, the Americans can only under-sell us by the methods the exposure of which has shocked the civilized world. Take Manila; the American has got the slightest chance to compete with Queensland in tendering for the large contracts for the Government supplies of frozen meat. We beat both the Argentine and the United States easily, and secure the order. But when it comes to canned goods in Manila we have not any chance. This applies not only to the Eastern market; it is the same with the other food-importing countries. Last year we exported over £1,500,000 sterling of frozen meat, yet our shipments of canned goods just barely turned £200,000. The demand for our frozen lamb is invariably exceeds the supply.

"I told you last year that the other Australian States were closely following the example of Queensland in passing laws which exact the most rigid Government inspection of all food products intended for over-sea exportation. Not only have the beasts to be examined by the veterinarians before slaughtering, but there is a systematic inspection of all factories and works. There is microscopic examination of all hog products. This all helps to establish the soundness of our article in the foreign markets. There are greedy and selfish men to be found in every country. Men who, for a temporary, perhaps only a slight, advantage over their competitors, would spoil a market by sending inferior shipments. It is the Honourable Digby Denham, the Minister for Agriculture in Queensland, to whom is due all the credit for the rigid laws with respect to State supervision of food products. Quite recently, he passed a most severe Dairy Inspection Act. Not only is cleanliness made compulsory, but there is regular and systematic testing and inspection at all creameries and butter and cheese factories.

AT the present time the coal trade of Newcastle, N.S.W., is brisk, and it promises even better things. There was in the harbour last month a fleet of some 60 vessels waiting for coal cargoes, nearly all of them sailers of large tonnage. The tramp steamers for the moment were not much in evidence. The list of vessels to arrive has on it about 120 names, and its length is being more than maintained. A good demand for foreign requirements is therefore assured for the winter, and the prospects in respect of the inter-State trade are at least equally good. The negotiations now in progress for the formation of a "vend" which shall regulate the output and the selling price of coal, seem likely to end satisfactorily to the promoters of the arrangement.

AT about 6.30 o'clock yesterday morning, an accident occurred in a house at No. 3, Wing Shing Street, and as a result a Chinese girl, about eight years of age, died some hours later. Although the accident occurred early in the morning, the police were not notified until last night, after the child had died. According to the story told the police by the mother of the children, it is related that, at the time mentioned, her elder daughter and the other child were in the kitchen. The elder was pouring out boiling water from an earthenware pot into a basin for the younger one to wash its face. The handle of the pot was hot and as she could bear the heat no longer she dropped the pot of boiling water and scalded her sister. Instead of informing the police authorities of the occurrence and seeing that the unfortunate child was removed to the hospital, the old woman summoned a Chinese doctor. The child died the same afternoon.

S.S. "RUBR"

THE CASE OF CAPT. ALMOND.

Although it was known several weeks ago that the popular captain of the Rubi, R. W. Almond, had been acquitted, of violation of the immigration laws, the Manila Cablenews says the decision of the Supreme Court, which goes extensively into law, and was written by Judge Carson, has just been made public.

It was alleged that Captain Almond, about October 27 brought a Chinaman to Manila from Hongkong, and that the man was afflicted with trachoma, a loathsome contagious disease, and that the captain allowed him to land at a place and time other than that designated by the immigration-officers and contrary to instructions issued.

The captain was charged with a violation of the Act of Congress of March 3, 1903, entitled "An Act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States." The Act provides that a penalty of $100, or a term of three years, shall be imposed for a violation thereof. Captain Almond was found guilty and sentenced to pay a fine according to this Act.

The statute reads simply that the officer "who shall permit such alien to land etc." The defendant contended that the word "permit" implied that the landing of the alien, to constitute a criminal offence must have been with the Captain's tacit consent. The word "permit," as defined in the Century Dictionary, means to suffer to be or allow without expressly authorizing. The Supreme Court held that if this requirement was intended to make the master of a vessel an insurer against their landing at all hazards, Congress would have chosen terms more clearly expressive of such intention, and instead of using a word of uncertain meaning would have affixed a penalty where the captain in charge permitted the alien to land with or without fault on his part.

The attorneys for the prosecution contended that the officer was responsible criminally even though he had taken every precaution possible and done all in his power to prevent the unlawful landing. The Court thought that the evidence of record was sufficient to sustain the contention of Captain Almond that he adopted the due precautions and that the Chinese landing was without his consent and despite the precautions taken.

The Court says in conclusion: "We think this statute was not intended to secure the obedience to all the rules of the immigration officers at all hazards, but at most to require good faith and full diligence in the effort to comply with them." Judgment of the trial court is reversed and the accused is acquitted of the offence with the costs of both instance de officio and the bond for the appearance of the accused cancelled.

INDIAN CONSTABLE 841, of No. 8 Police Station,

hung out a pair of canvas gaiters to dry yesterday, but when he wanted them, they had disappeared. He did not expect to see them again, but in the afternoon he discovered the missing gaiters in the basket of a marine hawk, who was walking in his direction. The marine man was arrested, and charged with theft. On being placed before Mr. Hazeland, at the Police Court this morning, the defendant could give no satisfactory explanation as to how the gaiters were found in his basket. The gaiters cost the Government $2.50, and defendant said he purchased them from a man for one cent. His Worship sentenced him to one month's hard labour.

HARBOUR OFFICE.

AS A MARKET.

In the British Colonies, one sometimes hears of strange adaptations of stranger structures for use as Government departmental offices, but these more usually partake of the "annexing" of some big godown, altering the same by the erection of walls and partitions, putting in the requisite furniture, "and there you are," you have an office fit for the Lord High Chancellor, or the Lord High anybody else, for that matter. Here in Hongkong, however, the old rule, if it can be called such, is to be reversed, and when the Harbour Master's department moves into its new home now just nearing completion, on the Praya, and situated to the east of the Canton wharf, on the 1st prox., the offices vacated are to be altered and in future utilized as a pork and vegetable market, as an annex to the market erected just opposite to that building, and which is to be used for the sale of fish, meat, and general produce. The scheme at least has the merit of novelty, and as there does not appear to be any other particular use to which to put the vacated building, perhaps a better scheme could not have been devised. A marine commander, in the Harbour Office the other day, remarked to a representative of the Hongkong Telegraph, that the building would make an ideal seamen's hospital, but he had evidently not studied its environments, nor, apparently, was he aware that the new building just across the way was to be used as a place for the sale and distribution of our daily supplies of food, and no hospital is wanted anywhere near it. Heaven forbid!

NOCTURNAL ACROBAT.

SENT TO GAO.

A Chinaman calling himself Tsang Kin appeared before Mr. C. A. D. Melbourne, at the Police Court this morning, charged with being a rogue and vagabond inasmuch as he was found wandering about the public street during the small hours of this morning, and having no fixed place of abode. Defendant denied the accusation of "wandering about the street," saying that he was getting fresh air. Evidence was heard to the effect that when Tsang was first sighted by the police he was looking up the staircase of different houses. The policeman lost sight of the man for a while, but on turning the next corner he found Tsang busily climbing up the scaffolding, which was erected outside house No. 13, Lower Lascar Row. The officer told Tsang to come down and be arrested. Tsang replied that if he didn't look out he would drop on him. Eventually the acrobatic gentleman was marched to the Central Police Station. At the Court to-day, Tsang said that he did not go up the scaffolding for any unlawful purpose, but simply to get the wind and to "see things." He was sentenced to fifteen days' hard labour.

TRADE DEVELOPMENT WITH THE EAST.

"We hope to be able to announce in the course of a few weeks," said Mr. Carruthers, the other day, "a very considerable alteration with regard to the Eastern trade. The matter is not yet ripe for the particulars to be disclosed, but it is anticipated that there will be a marked development in certain matters connected with the East, in which this State will participate very considerably." The Commercial Agent for New South Wales in the East, Mr. J. B. Sutor, is shortly coming to Sydney on a visit, and will, the Premier thinks, do much good in explaining matters. Mr. Sutor was to leave about the middle of May, and should therefore be here in about four weeks from that time. It is possible that the Premier may refer to the bringing of New South Wales and other States of Australia within the favoured nations treatment in connection with the Japanese conventional tariff, in which case certain items will receive preferential treatment. Great Britain more particularly comes under this head in regard to a number of items.—Sydney Daily Telegraph.

PRIZE FIGHT.

AT THE CITY HALL.

As announced in our issue last evening it was to be the case, the proprietor of the Britt-Nelson fight pictures gave a special Press exhibition, as a preliminary to the show which takes place to-night, in the Theatre Royal, City Hall, at 9 p.m. These pictures evince the vast strides that have been made in bringing the production of living pictures as near perfection as possible, and looking upon them last night, gave one all the realistic impressions of fight actually going on before one's eyes. The pictures are remarkably clear and steady, that vibration as the films are rolled off, with which we are all familiar from previous shows of the sort, and which was so irritating and tiring to the eyes being almost entirely absent. The only thing wanting to make it quite "the real thing," was the sound of the "pud" as the gloves found a goal on the face of one or other of the opponents. All lovers of the noble art of self-defence will find the show well worth a visit, and as booking is going merrily on a full house should be assured for to-night, at any rate, especially as the prices are very reasonable—$2 and $1, soldiers and sailors in uniform being admitted for 50 cents.

MONEY-CHANGER IN TROUBLE.

ALLEGED THEFT FROM JOB.

Mak Chak, a money-changer, of No. 112, Queen's Road East, was charged before Mr. F. A. Harland, this morning, with stealing $10 from Job Roberts, foreman, Army Service Department, at 9 a.m. to-day.

Mr. P. W. Goldring appeared for the defendant, who pleaded not guilty.

At about nine o'clock this morning, the complainant went to defendant's shop and tendered him a ten-dollar note in exchange for subsidiary coins. The defendant placed the roll of coins, representing ten dollars, on the counter and also fifty-five cents extra as premium. The complainant was so surprised at this that he forgot all about the $10 in small coin, but took the premium and walked away. After having proceeded about one hundred yards from the shop he discovered his mistake and rushed back to the shop for his money. It was alleged defendant said complainant took it away, and would not return the money. Complainant went to No. 2 Police Station and reported the occurrence to Inspector Gourlay, who arrested the money-changer.

Mr. Goldring asked for a remand, which was granted until Wednesday next. Defendant was released on bail in the sum of $50.

SANITARY BOARD.

SHANGHAI IN 1905.

A RECORD YEAR.

Following is the concluding portion of Commissioner H. E. Hobson's report on the trade of Shanghai for 1905:—

(b) Exports and (c) Re-exports.—A decrease of 22 millions taels, or 17 per cent., in the value of this trade, compared with that of 1904, is disclosed by the Returns. To this large decline Raw Cotton contributes the largest share. The export of Cotton shows a large falling off from the high figures of the preceding year—about 485,000 piculs, of which 279,000 piculs are re-exports and 206,000 piculs exports. The area planted locally was very large, and the crop promised extremely well until the floods in September, which did considerable damage in some districts and in many others stopped the steady development of the plants, with a consequent lessening of production and deterioration of quality. In spite of these drawbacks the crop was probably as large as that of 1904. The decreased export is due to high exchange, more cautious buying on the part of exporters, and efforts on the part of producers to maintain prices, the stocks remaining on hand at the end of the year being much larger than at the beginning. The abnormal prices of 1904 have not been maintained, the general trend having been to lower and steadier values. Other important decreases are also shown under Hides (34 per cent.), White Raw Silk (30 per cent.), Wild Raw Silk (30 per cent.), and Black Tea (50 per cent.). Among the goods that show marked improvements will be found Fresh and Preserved Eggs (75 per cent.), Sesamum Seed (270 per cent.), and Waste Silk (37 per cent.). Japan alone took to million taels worth of goods less than in the previous year. The business done in Silk was very limited. For the fourth year in succession the White Silk crop was only a small one, and the increased Native consumption tends to accentuate the deficiency caused by indifferent crops. In the export of Raw Silk to Foreign countries there was a decrease of 5,000 piculs, and Re-reels fell from 12,964 to 8,856 piculs. The shipments to France alone show shortages of 3,704 bales in White Raw and 2,338 bales in Re-reels. On the other hand, the departures of Re-reels for America continued steadily throughout the season. In Steam Filatures the export figures differ but slightly from those of the previous year. A partial failure of the cocoon crop in Chekiang and heavy speculative purchases brought the prices to a level which the losses incurred in 1904 hardly justified. Subsequently, with an advance in the Silk market during July, August, and September, prospects brightened up; but the rise in sterling exchange which characterized the latter part of the year soon paralyzed all transactions in Silk, and it may be said that for nine-tenths of the Shanghai Silk filatures the year has been an unprofitable one. In Shaw Braid the receipts at Shanghai of transshipment cargo and that intended for the local market show an increase of 4,264 bales over the total of the previous year—not an unsatisfactory result, considering that the reduction on home-ward freights from Tsingtau enabled steamers to take cargo from the port direct to Europe at lower rates than those demanded from Shanghai to the same destination. There was a falling off in all descriptions of Wooted plaits, Tuscon, Pearls, and Fancies, and a decided increase in Plain White, Plain Splits, and Cords. The American market took the most expensive Fine Splits, Plain White, and Fine Mottled Braid, the value of which is much greater than the ordinary coarse cargo shipped to Great Britain and the Continental ports. Taking the violent fluctuations of exchange during the year into consideration, prices have been remarkably steady, and may be said to have advanced largely when reduced to a sterling basis. A comparison of the Special tables giving the Tea exported during the years 1904 and 1905 shows considerable decreases in the export of Black Tea to Great Britain and the United States. The Hankow market opened late in the season; the protracted wet weather had retarded the preparation of the leaf, and Foreign buyers were not anxious to operate until better acquainted with the damage done. In Green Teas, business on the whole has been satisfactory, especially to those interested to the English market, and this despite the larger quantity shipped there during the year. The lower grades were mostly favoured, and in good demand at very full rates, much against the generally expressed opinion. All experts seem to agree as to the inferiority this season of both the Black and Green Tea leaf, but nevertheless both staples appreciated in the consuming markets to an extent little anticipated by shippers.

COAST TRADE.

(b) Original Shipments Coastwise.—This trade represents a value of 33½ million taels—an increase of 4½ million taels over the figures for 1904. Shipments to Newchwang alone advanced from 1,116,572 to 1,524,000 taels. Local industries seem to have done well, and important increases are recorded in the export to coast ports of Native-made Cigarettes and milled Flour and Paper. There is a falling off in the shipments of Shanghai-made Sheetings and Drills, but from a money-making point of view 1905 is said to have been the most satisfactory year since the Cotton mills employing Foreign machinery started.

(c) Reshipments Coastwise.—No remarks. (c) Coastwise Arrivals.—As compared with the total in the preceding year, the decrease in the value of this trade amounts to 15½ million taels, more than half of which is accounted for under Raw Cotton. The port chiefly concerned in this result is Hankow, and among the other goods mostly affected are Cow and Buffalo Hides, Sesamum Seed, White Raw Silk, Wild Silk, and Black Tea.

INLAND TRANSIT.

(a) Inwards.—The value of the trade was Hk. Tls. 1,548,978, or Hk. Tls. 323,000 less than in 1904.

(b) Outwards.—No changes worthy of comment.

SHIPPING.

Entries and clearances, represent 10,265 vessels and 14,344,162 tons—an increase of 81 vessels and 2,162,364 tons on the figures of the preceding year. On the Shanghai-Soochow-Hangchow lines the number of steam-launches, passenger-boats, and trading junks is yearly increasing, and the tonnage employed in that traffic amounted to over 1,100,000 tons. There is also a fair improvement in the trade carried on under Inland Steam Navigation Rules. The year was not a good one for freights, and certainly unprofitable for many of the outside boats, with the exception of those which had big charters with the Russian Government. The great expectations in the freight market of a boom on the cessation of hostilities were not released, and though the rates for Vladivostok were in certain instances very high, a large part of the profit was eaten up by the delay in loading and discharging.

PASSENGER TRAFFIC.

Is yearly increasing.

TREASURE.

The recorded movements of Gold and Silver Bullion between Shanghai and Foreign countries show a net import of Gold worth Hk. Tls. 7,640,000, and a net import of Silver to the value of Hk. Tls. 8,968,000. As was the case in 1904, there were important arrivals from Japan of Gold Coins, valued at 10½ million taels, and no indication is given in the statistical table as regards their further destination; we have, however, good reasons to suppose that the bulk were melted down here into Gold Bars and eventually forwarded to Europe, chiefly through the medium of Union post offices. During 1905 silver reached its highest level since 1896, and the price almost touched 32d. There was a large demand for the East and an increase in the shipments to China. Exchange, which at the beginning of the year was nominally 25.9d. for the Shanghai tael, touched its lowest, 25.6d., in March and April, and then steadily rose to 25.10d. at the close.

OPIMUM.

(a) Foreign.—Malwa shows a decline of nearly 5,000 piculs, the high rates which obtained during the first part of the year having evidently tended to reduce the consumption. The highest prices, Tls. 840 to Tls. 1,000, according to age and quality, were quoted during June and July; prices then commenced to recede, until by the end of the year they stood at Tls. 740 to Tls. 890, or at lower figures than when the year began. In Bengal the heavy stocks carried over from the previous season, and a very successful crop of China Opium, kept prices down and depressed the markets. The arrivals exceeded by some 1,200 piculs those of 1904.

(b) Native.—A full crop, as in the preceding year. The arrivals of Szechuan and Yunnan Opium show increases of 3,025 piculs and 715 piculs respectively.

THE WEATHER.

The following report is from Mr. F. G. Figg, First Assistant of the Hongkong Observatory:—On the 9th at 11.40 a.m. The barometer has risen slightly over S. China and Japan, and fallen a little in N. China. Pressure is lowest over Manchuria, and highest over NE. Japan and the China Sea. Moderate and fresh SW. winds are indicated in the Farnesa Channel, and light S. winds over the N. part of the China Sea. Forecast:—SW. winds, moderate to light; (fall).

WEEKLY SHARE REPORT.

Reviewing the share business for the week, Messrs. E. S. Kadoorie & Co. write on the 8th inst.:—Since we last wrote there has been no improvement in the local share market and but few transactions have been put through.

Banks.—Sales have been effected of Hongkong & Shanghai Banks at $800, the market closing firm with buyers at $810. Nationals can be negotiated at $58.

Marine Insurances.—Cantons continue on offer at $360 but without finding buyers. Unions are still required for quotation, while both North Chinas and Yangtses remain unaltered.

Fire Insurances.—There are no changes under this heading. China Fires are quoted at $85 but can probably be placed at $84. Hongkong Fires are wanted at $305.

Shipping.—China and Manillas are in fair demand at $21. Douglases continue firm at $40. Hongkong, Canton and Macao Steamboats are in request at $24½. Indos have further depreciated and close weak with sellers at $75. We are informed that the balance at profit and loss a/c, after making due allowance for depreciation, and the transfer of £39,807, is 90 to the underwriting account, is £17,247 out of which it is proposed to pay a dividend of 10½ per share and carry forward £2,452.

Star Ferries are the same, viz. $30 and $21 for old and new shares respectively.

Refineries.—China Sugars are still on the market at $165 but without business. Luzons are nominally quoted at $15. Perak Sugars are stronger and are now wanted at Tls. 102½.

Mining.—There is but little to report. Chinese Engineerings are slightly easier and have been fixed at Tls. 10, but the quotation is a nominal one. Orientals are unchanged. The company has just declared an interim dividend of fifty cents gold per share. Raubs are stronger with buyers at $3.

Docks, Wharves and Godowns.—Hongkong and Whampoa Docks have receded to $160 closing with sellers at this rate. Kowloon Wharfs are unaltered with no business to report at $165. Shanghai Docks have been placed at Tls. 115, but towards the close sellers predominate. Hongkong Wharfs are procurable at Tls. 225.

Lands, Hotels and Buildings.—Hongkong Lands have declined to $118 without sales. Shanghai Lands are a shade firmer and have been sold at Tls. 116½. Hongkong Hotels are quiet at $130. Humphreys' Estates are to be had at $114.

Cotton Mills.—Ewos have reacted to Tls. 70 at which rate shares have changed hands. There are buyers of Hongkong Cottons at $14, and sales are reported of Lanu Kung Mows at Tls. 73. Internationals and Soey Chees are both offering at quotations.
